This Assurance Is Given at Hearing on Acquiring of Control by Van Sweringen Interests.

$100,000,000 HAS BEEN INVESTED

Two Holding Companies Involved, Immediate Transfer Being to the Allegheny Corporation.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 21.—The Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland, and one of their holding companies, the Allegheny Corporation, have invested approximately $100,000,000 in securities of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. in acquiring control of the road. It was testified today in a hearing before the Public Service Commission on an application for authority to transfer the stock control to the Allegheny Corporation.

The Van Sweringens and their representatives have acquired, or contracted to acquire, a total of 778,500 shares of the total of 846,398 shares of Missouri Pacific common and preferred stock outstanding, or 92.3 per cent. The common and preferred have equal voting rights.

In addition the group has acquired $24,000,000 of the outstanding $46,297,000 of Missouri Pacific 5 1/2 per cent convertible bonds.

John P. Murphy of Cleveland, secretary of the Allegheny Corporation, testified the par value of the stock acquired, and the bonds, was $101,680,000. He was asked to submit figures on the actual cost of these securities to the purchasers. He said he would produce the cost figures later in the hearing.

Two Holding Companies.

Cross-examination of Murphy disclosed that if the commission grants the application, the Van Sweringens will control the Missouri Pacific through a second holding company, known as the General Securities Corporation.

No protest was made at the opening of the hearing against the proposal to place stock control of the railroad in the Allegheny Corporation, and there was no indication that formal objections would be presented. The Public Service Commission sent notices of the hearing to the Governors and Public Service Commissions of the nine other states in which the Missouri Pacific operates, the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Senate and House committees on Interstate Commerce.

Objection to the merging of railroads through holding company control instead of through consolidation under supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission was made last week by Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman of the I. C. C. in a report to a Senate committee in Congress. He advocated legislation prohibiting mergers through holding companies.

Move for Transcontinental Line. Murphy testified the General Securities Corporation controlled the Allegheny Corporation, and that the Van Sweringens sold 10 per cent of the stock of the General Securities Corporation.

While stock control of the Missouri Pacific has been purchased or is under contract of purchase by the Van Sweringens group, legal ownership of the stock cannot pass to the holding company, the Allegheny Corporation, until the Missouri Public Service Commission grants its consent. The Missouri public utilities act provides that consent of the commission is required before any corporation may acquire in excess of 10 per cent of the stock of a railroad or other public utility operating in Missouri. This, however, has never been passed upon by the courts. The Missouri Pacific is a Missouri corporation.

As has been told, acquisition of the Missouri Pacific stock is the latest known development in moves by the Van Sweringens to complete formation of a transcontinental railroad system.

Should the Missouri commission approve the transfer of stock control to the Allegheny Corporation, the holding company, the transaction could not be affected by any subsequent legislation by Congress to regulate holding companies or railroad mergers.

Purchased Before Dec. 31. Murphy testified most of the Missouri Pacific stock acquired by the Van Sweringens has been purchased prior to last Dec. 31. He testified Allegheny Corporation had stock holdings in the Nickel Plate, the Santa Fe, Kansas City Southern, Erie, Pere Marquette, Chesapeake & Ohio, and others. On instructions of the commission, he said he would submit to the commission a complete record of the railroad holdings of the holding company and the percentage of stock held in each instance.

Murphy said most of the banking business of O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen in this railroad operations was with J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York. He declared the holding company control would be very beneficial to the Missouri Pacific, through ability of the holding company to aid the railroad in its financing and development.

On cross examination by Harold Ross, chief accountant for the commission, Murphy admitted the Missouri Pacific was able to finance itself at present, and was an excellent operating property, but said he believed the Van Sweringens would be very helpful to the road, and could aid it in less prosperous times.

Murphy testified the Van Sweringens had acquired securities of the Missouri Pacific of a par value of $101,680,000, at an actual cost of $98,474,457. The acquisition included 358,000 shares of preferred stock, at a cost of $31,474,525.44, or an average of $136.05 a share; 545,700 shares of the 5 1/2 per cent convertible bonds, at an actual cost of $44,115,120.49, or an average of $80.84 a share; 24,000,000 of the outstanding $46,297,000 of 5 1/2 per cent convertible Missouri Pacific bonds, for $23,886,811.63.

Corporation's Holdings Listed. Murphy testified the Allegheny Corporation now had stock and bond holdings in 13 railroad companies, including the Missouri Pacific. He listed these stock, and the percentage of stock in each road, as follows:

Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe, 85,000 shares of common, or 2 per cent; Chesapeake & Ohio, 93 shares common, only nominal holding; Chesapeake Corporation, 1,376,400 shares common, or 70 per cent; Erie Railroad Co., 215,000 shares common, or 9.9 per cent; Great Northern Railway Co., 11,800 shares preferred, or 4 per cent; Kansas City Southern 104,100 shares common, or 20 per cent; Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co., 33,848 shares common, or 17 per cent; New York Central Railroad Co., 45,000 shares common, or 7.8 per cent; the Pittston Co., 474,340 shares, or 44 per cent; Wheeling & Lake Erie Railway Co., 54 shares prior lien, nominal holding; Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., 545,700 shares common and 222,800 shares preferred, or 50.3 per cent.

To Retain L. W. Baldwin. Judge Dan G. Taylor of St. Louis, who, with George C. Willson, represented the Allegheny Corporation, informed the Commission it was the intention of the Van Sweringens to retain L. W. Baldwin of St. Louis as president of the Missouri Pacific, in recognition of his work in developing the road in the last several years.

W. L. Ross of Cleveland, president of the Nickel Plate System, a Van Sweringen railroad, testified the Van Sweringens had greatly aided equity railroad in which they had acquired an interest and said he believed their acquisition of the Missouri Pacific would be "the greatest thing that ever happened for the Missouri Pacific."

He read a prepared statement of management and operation of the Nickel Plate under Van Sweringen control.

Ross declared that so far as he knew the Van Sweringens had made no charges through their holding companies for financial or supervisory services, and declared the two brothers had served as chairmen of the boards of directors of various railroads without compensation.

Edward J. White of St. Louis, vice president of the general solicitor of the Missouri Pacific, testified that he thought all of the Missouri Pacific organization and most of the minority stockholders favored acquisition of control by the Van Sweringens since it had been learned that Baldwin was to be retained as president. He said he believed the move would benefit the road and the public.

The commission took the case under submission and will issue an order later. It is thought the application will be granted, as no objection was made and no adverse testimony was submitted at the hearing.

SAYS TALK OF NULLIFYING PROHIBITION ACT IS TREASON

Federal Judge Reeves Declares U. S. Should Not Surrender to Bootleggers.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 21.—Expressing regret that Federal courts must, "term after term, emphasize the Federal prohibition laws," Federal Judge A. L. Reeves, Kansas City, today compared those who talked of nullification by violation with Benedict Arnold.

Judge Reeves said: "When the battle is on, we ought not to surrender or dip the flag to the bootleggers and admit the bootleggers are greater than the American Government. So long as the eighteenth amendment is a part of the Constitution, it is the supreme law. The Constitution represents the flag which we wave and which we cheer. When you trample and spit on the Constitution, you spit on the United States flag."

More than 40 are liquor law violators from Jefferson City, Columbia, Booneville, Sedalia and other sections of Central Missouri. Granatta was one of the first of the gang machine gunners.

When Del Re and Special re-opened the Blue Hour saloon a week ago it was bombed with bricks. It was apparent that someone had warned Del Re against opening, for Del Re, viewing the shattered glass, was heard to say: "To the devil with them. They can't stop us."

Del Re, unarmed, sought safety in flight. He leaped over the cigar counter and ran for the door. A part of his cuff link, torn from his sleeve as he vaulted the counter, was found on the floor. The slayer dropped him with a bullet in the base of the brain.

He, too, was unarmed, but he snatched up a clasp knife, seized a plaster saint and rushed upon the killer from behind. The mirror behind the bar disclosed him, and the assassin, firing into Special's chest.

Miami, Fla., April 21.—Having arrived quietly under protection of a Federal injunction, Alphonse Capone, Chicago extortionist, was back at his Palm Island estate today "for a rest which I think I deserve."

He came by train from Chicago and was met by his attorney. He took a 13-year-old nephew, who accompanied him, and his young son for a speedboat ride on Biscayne Bay and then returned to his residence.

An injunction granted by United States Judge Halsted L. Ritter cleared a path through Florida for Capone's approach to Miami by restraining Sheriffs of 20 counties from molesting him without a warrant.

THREE CAPONE GANGSTERS SHOT DEAD IN CHICAGO

Operators of Speakeasy Slain by Man Apparently Known to Victims as They Counted Receipts.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Three Capone gangsters were shot dead in a speakeasy here early Easter morning.

One man entered the Blue Hour saloon, tossed a dollar bill on the bar and ordered beer. Two minutes later he ran out, the beer untouched, change from his dollar still on the bar—and three dead men on the sawdust floor. Walter (The Fibber) Wakefield, lay dead behind the bar. A bullet had struck him in the back of the head. Frank del Re, sometimes called Frank Dire, 33 years old, also had been shot in the back, apparently as he sought to flee. Joseph Special, 28, partner of Del Re in the operation of the saloon, lay dead in front of the bar. He had been shot in the chest as the assassin turned to meet his attack. In one hand Special clasped a knife. In the other, gripped like a club, was the bust of a plaster saint.

Police saw the crime both as a refutation to the reported "peace agreement" in gangland and as a challenge to the Capone overlordship.

Labor Union Angle. Wakefield, police heard, was a protégé of Dan Serritella, City leader and Republican power in the First Ward. Serritella has been regarded as friendly to "Scarface Al" Capone. Wakefield and Del Re were active in the election in Serritella's successful campaign for committee man.

A man whose name was withheld by police said Wakefield on Saturday night had attended a meeting of the Bread, Crackers, Toast and Pie, Wagon Drivers Union, No. 734.

"Capone planned to take over the union through Wakefield," the man said. "I heard some say following the meeting: 'We'll have to kill him yet. His body will be found in an alley before long.'"

The three dead men were known to the police, but none of them, so far as the records disclose, ever had any serious trouble with the law. Several years ago Del Re was held on a burglary charge, which later was changed to disorderly conduct. Special was a cousin of Phil Special, after whom the village of Specialville, a Capone gang headquarters, was named.

Wakefield was a drug clerk, turned bartender. Windows Broken at Opening. The Blue Hour saloon was the place where Jimmy Vinel and Joe Granatta shot it out five years ago. Vinel was the driver of the death car in the assassination of "Boss" Knight, labor leader. Granatta was one of the first of the gang machine gunners.

NORRIS ATTACKS LONGWORTH'S DELAY ON 'LAME DUCK' BILL

Senator Says Speaker Acted Arbitrarily in Holding It Up 10 Months.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Senator Norris (Rep., Nebraska), said in the Senate today that Speaker Longworth had exercised "arbitrary action" in holding on his table for 10 months the Nebraska resolution to abolish the "lame duck" or short session of Congress.

Norris was speaking on his resolution to appoint a committee to inquire into the reasons for delay in the House in referring his constitutional amendment proposal to a House committee.

He contended his proposal had been "sidetracked" after it had lain on the Speaker's table more than 10 months in favor of a similar House resolution reported only this month.

The record, Norris asserted, "refutes" the explanation for the delay given by Speaker Longworth, Norris (Rep., Ohio), said Norris had violated the rules by using the word "arbitrary" in his criticism.

After a lengthy parliamentary wrangle, Vice President Curtis ruled that Senators could use their discretion in criticizing decisions of the House. "That's no rule," Fess retorted.

"I'll make it a rule," Curtis returned sharply.

U. S. JUDGE UNDER INQUIRY
APPEARS BEFORE COMMITTEE

Harry Anderson of Western Tennessee District Questioned by Group in House.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Federal Judge Harry B. Anderson of the Western Tennessee District today presented himself at the House Judiciary Committee rooms for questioning with regard to his conduct in office. Anderson came voluntarily. He was received by a subcommittee consisting of Congressmen La Gue (Rep., Tenn.), York (Rep., Tenn.), and Browning (Rep., Tenn.), Democrats.

Immediately the subcommittee and Judge Anderson went into executive conference.

In resolution introduced in the House, the Judiciary Committee requested the Justice Department to furnish the Judiciary Committee with information relative to Anderson's official conduct. This information was considered by the Judiciary Committee, which formally designated the subcommittee to make further inquiry.

London Naval Pact to Be Signed Tomorrow

Shunned Consultative Pact. He attributed failure to reach a five-Power limitation treaty to French demands for political security and Italian demands for naval parity with France, and disclosed for the first time that America was never approached to join in a security pact and that France refused even to consider such a consultative pact as was once suggested in a statement of Secretary of State Stimson.

His address was a well studied, carefully prepared discussion of the work of the conference, and was accorded the utmost importance, since Robinson, as Democratic leader, might at least be expected to view the treaty hypercritically. The delegation counts on his support in the Senate to win many Democratic votes to approval of the document.

The preamble to the treaty, which with the safeguarding clause has been rigorously kept secret, was made public today, shortly after Tokyo dispatches and the Japanese delegation here announced that Japan would sign the treaty without changes. The preamble is a single sentence, which says:

The President of the United States of America, the President of the French Republic, His Majesty, the King of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Dominions beyond the seas, His Majesty, the King of Italy, His Majesty, the Emperor of Japan, desiring to prevent the danger and reduce the burdens inherent in competitive armaments, and desiring to carry forward the work begun in the Washington naval conference and to facilitate the progressive realization of general limitation and reduction of armaments, have resolved, with a view to accelerating these purposes, to conclude a treaty for the limitation of naval armaments and have accordingly appointed as their plenipotentiaries:

Americans to Sign First. The American delegation will be the first to sign the historic document, Secretary of State Stimson as its head, leading off. The Powers will sign according to their English alphabetical order, America, France, Great Britain, Italy, and Japan. Following Stimson will be Ambassador Davies, Secretary of the Navy Adams, Senator Robinson, Senator Reed, and Ambassador Gibson and Morrow.

Foreign Minister Briand of France is on his way to London

today from Paris, while Dino Grandi, the Italian Foreign Minister and chief of delegation, will not be present for the signing. Grandi was ill when he last returned to Rome and is said still to be suffering from his indisposition.

Although it was first said that the treaty might run up to 16,000 words, it was reported late today that it would not run more than 7000 words.

MacDonald will broadcast a talk on the conference tomorrow evening at 8:40 p. m. The address, which will last 20 minutes, will be transmitted from all British stations.

The American delegation today concluded their sailing arrangements for the journey back home aboard the Leviathan, which will leave Southampton on Wednesday morning for which most of the delegation were in their quarters, superintending packing after the three months in London, while Stimson bade farewell to his country home at Stanmore and said good-bye to his household "affairs."

MacDonald returned to his Downing street office to take up business connected with the closing of the conference. He reached London yesterday from an Easter holiday in Looe, Cornwall, Scotland.

Official Japanese Approval Ordered. After a 4-hour conference, by the Associated Press.

TOKYO, April 21.—Formal instructions to sign the London naval pact on behalf of Japan were sent yesterday to Rijiro Wakatsuki, head of the Japanese delegation in London.

After the text had been carefully examined by Premier Hamaguchi and Foreign Minister Shidehara, and other high officials, it was decided there was no need to revise the document.

Before approving the treaty draft, Premier Hamaguchi and the Foreign Minister conferred with other high officials for four hours. After the conference the Premier issued a statement for the press.

"We carefully discussed the text of the treaty and found no necessity of revision," the Premier said to the Rengo News Agency. "The Foreign Office will immediately cable M. Wakatsuki instructions to sign. Upon receipt of M. Wakatsuki's report that the treaty is signed I shall make a further statement regarding the London conference."

Observers believe the Premier's promised statement on the conference would be designed as a reply to attack on the Government's course which the political opposition, including the big navy group and other conservatives, are expected to make this week, when the Parliamentary session opens.

Foreign Minister Shidehara also is expected to make a statement, either directly to the press or early in the Parliamentary session.

Officials believe that criticism of the treaty almost certainly will be clamorous, but the Associated Press was assured today by the highest authority that the Government is confident that opponents of the London agreement will not be able to prevent ratification. Many leaders in the Privy Council, whose approval must precede the Emperor's ratification, have spoken disapprovingly of the Government's "surrender," but the Cabinet is confident the Council will be unwilling to take the responsibility for violating the pact. This belief is strengthened by the fact that the International instrument will mean a great financial saving for Japan and gain the good will of the Anglo-Saxon Powers.

As has been told, the Columbia dentist's last confession related that he conceived and executed the deed, killed Pearman and disposed of the body without the aid of a gang of St. Louis gunmen that he previously had accused of dictating the plot and aiding in its execution.

The only help he had, Dr. Bass yesterday, was on March 27, he said after the murder, when he hired a man to remove the body of Pearman from the body of his automobile and throw it in the ravine near Gravette, where was found March 29.

"While driving near Springfield with Bill's body in the rear compartment I picked up a bum along the highway," the dentist said. "I lost my nerve over the thought of taking the body from the compartment, and wanted someone to help me. I asked this fellow, 'Do you want to make $10?' He responded that he did. He said he was bright, in my opinion, and I handed him the $10. He got back in the machine. I knew there never was a fellow so smart, and when we returned to the vicinity of Springfield, he jumped out and ran."

Dr. Bass has been held in the Benton County Jail here since March 30 when he identified Pearman's body as that of William Folsom, the alias under which Pearman obtained $200,000 life insurance and assigned it to Bass as collateral for a loan in Southwest Kansas. The first confession that he organized the plot, intimating that gangsters were the killers; then confessed that he killed Pearman, a former Columbia automobile mechanic, while gangsters begged his footsteps; and finally admitted Saturday that he played a hand in the unusual crime.

Statement by Pearman's Son. Investigation has failed to disclose the dentist's account of his movements on March 26, when he killed Pearman, and the succeeding days, although doctors have been raised as to whether the killing occurred in Boone County, Kansas, as Pearman's son, Robert Pearman, a student at Missouri University, has issued a statement asserting that Dr. Bass could not have shot Pearman in the right side of the head while holding a revolver in his right hand and driving an automobile, but Dr. Bass stated he killed the man in that manner, while Pearman was slumped forward in the seat in a drunken stupor.

Young Pearman also has asserted that his father's body was found in a pool of blood, indicating he was killed on the spot, but this statement is disputed here by Sheriff Fields, who said the ground was dry and the body doused up in a rigor mortis, indicating that it was in a cramped position for some time before it was thrown in the ravine.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS IN PHILIPPINE TYPHOON

Two Towns on Island of Leyte Wiped Out by Friday's Storm.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, April 21.—Crippled communications today brought further evidence of the toll taken Friday by the typhoon which swept over 14 towns of the island of Leyte, demolishing the communities of Tolosa and Dulag. Thousands were homeless and many reported dead or injured.

Official reports from the devastated region say a complete check can not be completed for a week or more, since many towns have been isolated.

The typhoon, of small area but unusual intensity, came as a surprise to Weather Bureau authorities, since such storms rarely occur at this season in the Philippines.

Gov. de la Cruz Layte wired the American Red Cross here, 41 hours after the typhoon struck, "please secure immediate aid for thousands of homeless people, especially food, clothing and building materials."

He described coconut trees as standing like lit candles, with their tops blown off. The entire crop was destroyed, he said.

Officials believe that criticism of the treaty almost certain will be clamorous, but the Associated Press was assured today by the highest authority that the Government is confident that the Cabinet in confidence the London agreement will not be able to prevent ratification. Many leaders in the Privy Council, whose approval must precede the Emperor's ratification, have spoken disapprovingly of the Government's "surrender" but the Cabinet is confident the Councilors will be unwilling to take the responsibility for wrecking the pact. This belief is strengthened by the fact that the international instrument will mean a great financial saving for Japan and gain the good will of the Anglo-Saxon Powers.

Official reports from the devastated region say a complete check can not be completed for a week or more, since many towns have been isolated.

The typhoon, of small area but unusual intensity, came as a surprise to Weather Bureau authorities, since such storms rarely occur at this season in the Philippines.

Gov. de la Cruz Leyte wired the American Red Cross here, 48 hours after the typhoon struck, "please secure immediate aid for thousands of homeless people, especially food, clothing and building materials."

HOLDING DR. BASS FOR PROOF KILLING WAS IN MISSOURI

Arkansas Authorities Not Satisfied With His Confession of Pearman's Murder for Insurance.

THINK HE'S BUILDING UP INSANITY CASE

Columbia Dentist, Repudiating Gangster Story, Says He "Hired Bum for $10" to Help Him.

By Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COVINGTON, Ark., April 21.—Dr. A. J. Bass, retired dentist of Columbia, Mo., indicted here for the $100,000 insurance fraud murder of William R. Pearman, will not be released to Missouri authorities until additional proof is presented that the killing actually occurred in that State.

Prosecuting Attorney John S. Combs said today, "The once-wild landowner and time candidate for Congress, in his confessions, has placed the scene of the murder in Boone County, near Rocheport, Mo., asserting that he killed Pearman in an automobile and hauled the body the next day to Gravette, Ark., 375 miles away."

Combs thinks the confessions are a smoke screen behind which a plea of insanity is being built. In cases such as this where the issue is an important factor, the prosecutor said, the law provides that unless sufficient proof is shown that the crime is presumed to have been committed in the county where the corpus delicti is found.

"Hired Bum to Help."

As has been told, the Columbia dentist's last confession related that he conceived and executed the killing of Pearman and disposed of the body without the aid of a hired man to remove the body from the scene of the crime.

He said he had hired a "bum" to help him, but he refused to say who the "bum" was, and he refused to say where he had hidden the body.

COMMITTEE VOTES 10 TO 6 AGAINST JUDGE PARKER

from attempting to unionize the West Virginia coal fields. The injunction, which modified a similar decree by Federal District Judge McClinton, enjoins the unions even to attempt "to persuade" the non-union workers to break the so-called yellow dog contracts made with their employers.

As described before the Borah subcommittee, a "yellow dog" contract was one "forced" on non-union miners stipulating that they would not join a union while employed by the West Virginia coal operators.

The more effective attack, however, was carried on by the Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which protested before the Borah subcommittee that in 1920 Parker, then a candidate for Governor, was reported as saying that the Negro was "not fit for participation in politics."

At least two Republican votes, those of Robinson, Indiana, and Deneen, Illinois, were based on this speech.

Deneen Explains His Vote.

Senator Deneen said that he had been forced to vote by what was in the committee's record and that the record contained no adequate explanation of the reported speech.

Deneen was one of the four Senators voting to call Parker before the committee. The others were Hebert, Overman and Stephens.

The Senators opposing the calling of Parker were Chairman Norris, Senators Borah, Gillette, Robinson of Indiana, Blaine, Steiwer, Hastings, Republicans, and Ashurst, Walsh of Montana and Dill, Democrats.

The committee's action today, which an hour's secret session forecast as bitter a debate on the floor, if the nomination is allowed to stand, as that caused by the nomination of Charles Evans Hughes to be Chief Justice.

In the Hughes fight, the Progressive Republicans joined with a group of Democrats against the 1916 Republican presidential candidate, and mustered 26 votes. In view of the Old Guard votes in the Judiciary Committee today, Judge Parker cannot look for much Republican support, when stalwarts, such as Deneen, Robinson of Indiana and Steiwer vote against President Hoover's choice. It is noteworthy that Overman and Stephens of Mississippi supported Parker, thus indicating the North Carolina Republican may receive several Southern Democratic votes.

Labor Unions Protest.

Labor spokesmen last night renewed their demands that Judge Parker's nomination be rejected. Statements were issued by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and by John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers.

Green said a canvass of the Senate showed a majority opposed to the nomination and that for this reason, a vote of confirmation was being delayed.

Referring to Judge Parker's labor injunction decision, Lewis asked "Why is it necessary for the President to appoint, and why is it necessary for the Senate to confirm, the elevation to the Supreme Bench of Parker, the Judge who in the Red Jacket injunction suit delivered 50,000 free Americans into indentured servitude?"

The American Federation of Labor contended that in a decision upholding the so-called "yellow dog contract" and restraining the unions from seeking to organize employees of a concern that had signed such contracts, Judge Parker displayed what was termed a "judicial bias" against the workmen.

The American Association for the Advancement of Colored People went back to the North Carolina gubernatorial campaign of 1920, in which Parker was the Republican nominee. The Negroes said that in a campaign speech Judge Parker showed a prejudice against their race.

Paul W. Terry of St. Louis, manager of the Missouri Inspection Bureau, in a statement given out in Chicago, said that the insurance companies would press their application for an increase in rates of 16 2-3 per cent in Missouri, as soon as the refunds are out of the way. Attorneys have advised the insurance companies that, under the Supreme Court's decision, they will not be in a position to press their application for higher rates until they have settled the back claims.

The decision for early payment of the refunds was reached at a meeting of the Subscribers' Actuarial Committee in Chicago. The refunds will represent 10 per cent of the premiums collected between Nov. 15, 1922, and Feb. 1, 1923. Besides fire insurance policies, the refunds will be made also on storm, wind, lightning and hail policies.

FIRE INSURANCE FIRMS WILL PAY BACK $8,000,000

168 Agree to Refund to Missouri Policy Holders Excess Premiums From 1922 to 1928.

Refunds of about $8,000,000 will be made by 168 stock fire insurance companies to their Missouri policy holders, within a short time, according to an announcement made at insurance organization headquarters in Chicago.

An Associated Press dispatch from Chicago fixed the amount of the refund at about $12,000,000. Charles R. Street of Chicago, chairman of the Subscribers' Actuarial Committee, said today that the $12,000,000 included about $4,000,000 paid out in refunds since Feb. 1, 1928. This leaves $8,000,000 to be paid for the period of five years, two and one-half months before date, which was in litigation until the United States Supreme Court rendered judgment last week.

He said the refunds would be made as soon as possible, and in the same manner as those which have been made. That is, they will be made by the insurance companies, acting in most cases through their local agencies.

Records Sufficient, Street Says.

Street's estimate of $4,000,000, for the refunds made for 1928-29, is larger than that of the Missouri State Insurance Department, which has stated that about $5,500,000 it was due to policy holders, but that it had no way of knowing how much had actually been paid.

When asked how the companies would find their policy holders before 1928, Street said there were sufficient records to furnish this information. It was stated, in the insurance companies' negotiations last year with Gov. Caulfield for a compromise, that their records before 1927 had been destroyed. The Governor refused the proposed compromise, which would have required the companies to refund about $5,500,000 of the excess premiums collected, and permitted them to keep the balance.

To Ask for Another Rise.

Paul W. Terry of St. Louis, manager of the Missouri Inspection Bureau, in a statement given out in Chicago, said that the insurance companies would press their application for an increase in rates of 16 2-3 per cent in Missouri, as soon as the refunds are out of the way. Attorneys have advised the insurance companies that, under the Supreme Court's decision, they will not be in a position to press their application for higher rates until they have settled the back claims.

Besides fire insurance policies, the refunds will be made also on storm, wind, lightning and hail policies.

History of the Case.

The claim for refunds, made by the State in behalf of the policy holders, was based upon a ruling by Supt. Hyde of the Missouri Department of Insurance in 1922, by which earnings on reserves were included in the net income of insurance companies for rate making purposes. The companies, arguing that reserves were liabilities and earnings on them could not properly be included, carried the case to the United States Supreme Court, which refused to review it. The companies then filed individual suits in Federal Court, the State appealing an adverse ruling to the Supreme Court. Its recent decision required that the companies observe a stipulation, which provided for refunds in the event that the litigation was adverse to the companies.

3 MEN AND GIRL DROWN IN NEGRO EASTER BAPTIZING

Pastor, Two Deacons and Member of Hopewell Baptist Church Sink at Foot of Franklin Av.

An Easter baptizing ceremony in the Mississippi River resulted in the drowning of four Negroes yesterday afternoon, when a minister, his assistant and a 13-year-old girl, who was being baptised, were carried downstream by a strong off-shore current, and a third man lost his life in attempting to rescue them.

The dead:

Rev. Robert C. Williams, 30 years old, pastor of the Hopewell Missionary Baptist Church, 1510 E. 13th St., 1430 North Fifteenth street.

Deacon Joseph McGee, 35, 1524 Chestnut street.

Deacon Henry Turner, 41, 1101A High street.

About 50 members of the Hopewell congregation, which meets at 1307A Biddle street, had gathered on the levee at the foot of Franklin avenue at 2:15 o'clock to witness the immersion of the Lewis girl, the congregation's only candidate for baptism at the annual Easter ceremony. McGee waded into the cold water and made soundings with a pole. Then he and the Rev. Williams, attired in black robes, led the girl, who trembled with cold in her filmy white dress, into the water about 12 feet from the bank. Holding her arms, they tilted her backwards beneath the water.

Girl Started to Struggle.

The shock of the cold plunge caused the girl to struggle. She slipped from McGee's hands. The Rev. Williams lost his footing, and he and the girl were swept into the current. McGee stumbled forward, attempting to grasp the girl's dress, and was swept downstream, too.

Turner and the Rev. Robert White, assistant pastor of the church, who were standing with the Rev. Williams' wife and three children, ran down the levee and plunged into the water in an attempt to rescue. Turner, not a strong swimmer, made a few strokes and sank. White, chilled and unable to reach the others, turned and swam to safety.

The Rev. Williams was the last to sink. He was seen floating on his back for a few minutes as the current carried him toward Eads bridge, holding a hand to his nose while he attempted to swim with his other hand. Members of the congregation ran along the levee in a vain search for a small boat. As the pastor sank a number of the congregation fell on their knees and prayed.

LINDBERGH'S SET RECORD FOR AIR TRIP ACROSS U. S.; TIME 14 HOURS, 45 MINUTES

Flying at 10,000 to 15,000 Feet They Go From West Coast to New York, With One Stop for Fuel.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Col. Charles J. Lindbergh, carrying Mrs. Lindbergh as navigator, set his low-wing Lockheed Sirius monoplane on the ground at Roosevelt Field at 11:11:53 o'clock last night, after a record-breaking flight from the Pacific Coast.

Undertaken as an experiment to test the feasibility of using the higher altitude for a rapid coast-to-coast express and passenger airplane service, the flight now goes down in the annals of aviation as a typical Lindbergh success.

He landed his plane at his goal 14 hours, 45 minutes and 35 seconds after taking the air at Glendale, Cal., clipping almost three hours off the previous record for an eastward trans-continental flight—17 hours and 43 minutes, established last summer by Capt. Frank M. Hawks, and beating by more than four hours Hawks' time East to West.

Measured by actual flying time, he did even better than that, for his plane was in the air only 14 hours, 23 minutes and 17 seconds. A short stop was made early in the afternoon at Wichita, Kan., for meteorological data and refueling. Hawks, in his flight, made no stops.

The fact that he and Mrs. Lindbergh made a stop, the Colonel pointed out technically made their flight not one to compare with that of Capt. Hawks. Hawks himself, however, accepted the flight as a new record. Hawks' crossing from East to West was made in 10 hours and 10 minutes flying time, which broke the previous record of 24 hours and 51 minutes made by Capt. Charles B. Collier and Harry I. Tucker.

Average Altitude 14,000 Feet.

The flight was made at an average altitude of from 14,000 to 15,000 feet, he said, with the maximum altitude 15,500 feet. Flying conditions on the whole were "not exceptionally good," he said, and he insisted it would be necessary to make many more such high altitude flights before establishing the practicability of using the upper air lanes for commercial aviation. This he hoped to do, he said.

The plane caught the light in striking fashion as it glided to a landing—its wings were orange, its body black with gold stripes. It bore the number NX-211—the Spirit of St. Louis, in which Lindbergh took off for Paris May 20, 1927, had almost the same number, NX-211.

The Colonel sat in the front cockpit and both he and his wife remained seated while the photographers shouted at their commands to smile. The Colonel obeyed somewhat grimly, but Mrs. Lindbergh obliged charmingly. Then Lindbergh climbed out and helped attendants set the plane into the hangar.

Among the notables on hand to congratulate the Colonel were Capt. Hawks and Capt. Lewis A. Tancy. Hawks expressed enthusiasm for the idea of high flying for trans-continental travel, voicing a belief that Lindbergh should make the trip in 15 hours. Also at the field were J. P. V. Heilmuller and W. D. Ward Jr., official timers for the National Aeronautical Association.

During the early evening Lindbergh's automobile was taken to the private garage of William B. Lewis on the field, and held there ready to whisk him and Mrs. Lindbergh to New York City.

Few Witnesses Start.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh motored to the airport in Glendale, Cal., at 4 a. m. Pacific standard time, while it was still dark. A crowd of 75 watched the motor warmed up. Electrically heated aviation suits, heavy woolen socks and thick boots were worn by the pair as protection against the low temperature they expected to encounter in high altitudes.

Two small bags, a box of lunch, parachutes, and an aviation sextant were the chief items of baggage stowed in the plane. If storms forced them above the clouds, or if the flight lasted into the night, Mrs. Lindbergh was to take bearings with the sextant for celestial navigation of the plane.

Lindbergh said this was the first time he had carried an aviation sextant in flight, and also the first time Mrs. Lindbergh has been his active navigating assistant. Joe Nikrent, official National Aeronautical Association timer placed a sealed barograph in the rear compartment of the plane, which, he said, will record Lindbergh's scheduled landing at Wichita as well as the entire flight.

The Colonel gave to Mrs. Lindbergh much of the credit for the technical details of the flight. She did the navigating, he said, kept the charts, and occasionally handled the controls. The plane is equipped with dual controls.

How Dr. Bass Arranged For $200,000 Insurance

Insurance was sought. Bass then told about entering into a contract with a William Foltz, under which Foltz had agreed to purchase a large tract of Arkansas land from Bass. Foltz, Bass said, was a Missourian who had been a resident of Japan for 17 years, had amassed a fortune there, but had sold his interests and had returned to the United States.

"Foltz is a Bohemian," Bass told Shaw, "and has a large following among Bohemians in this country. He plans to form a Bohemian colony on this land he is buying from me, and is doubtful that it is big enough for his purpose. He may need 4000 or 5000 more acres, but I believe I can get that much adjoining land for him."

Up to this point Bass had not batted the insurance agent nor exhibited undue interest in the matter. He appeared to be merely going through with an agreement to help his friend get insurance as a part of the land deal. Shaw saw the prospect of selling a good-sized policy and was hearing the preliminaries. But here Bass started in to hook Shaw.

"This man Foltz has plenty of money," he said. "He has already paid $5000 down in cash on our deal, paid it here in Johnson's office. He pulled out a roll of bills as big around as your arm, and when Johnson saw it his eyes almost popped out of his head."

Sale Price $248,000.

Bass told Shaw the sale price of the land was $248,000 and that more than 3000 acres was in the tract.

He presented a logical explanation for the desire to obtain the insurance, saying that Foltz at first suggested he would put up some of his personal securities as collateral for the notes, but finding that he had other use for them, asked Bass whether he would be satisfied if he would take out insurance and assign the policies, Bass would.

Though it does not appear that Shaw lacked interest in the sale of the insurance, in whatever amount was desired, Bass here played his trump card to take Shaw completely off his feet. If there was any question of doubt about Shaw's interest, it disappeared at Bass' next lead.

"It will take about $200,000 of insurance," Bass said, according to Shaw's report to his company, "but we needn't waste any time discussing that amount, because I have promised $100,000 of it to a very close friend of mine, a Mr. Lay who represents the Equitable of New York. Shaw didn't push the point just then, but he registered quite firmly a resolve that he wouldn't let the other $100,000 get away from him.

Bass went on to say that Lay had "in mind" writing insurance that would cost about $10 per $1000, and inquired about Shaw's rates. After asking Foltz's age, which Bass said was 37, Shaw said he could write term insurance at a cheaper rate, but thought little of that class of insurance. He said his company had an insurance contract (policy) which he thought would appeal to Foltz, and explained the Lincoln National's Emancipator policy, the rate on which at age 37 he said it was $15.51 per $1000. Bass expressed the opinion that the rate was a little high, but said as that was Foltz's business, they would wait and discuss it next day with Foltz who, Bass said, was driving from Denver to Kansas City.

Wanted to Write $200,000.

Shaw hadn't forgotten the extra $100,000 of insurance, which Bass had said he had promised his Columbia friend, and inquired whether the Columbia agent had taken Foltz's application.

"No," Bass replied, "the application has not been taken, but I feel that I have promised the business to Lay, and I wouldn't go back on my word to him. We are old acquaintances and have been very close friends."

"I said I would like to have a crack at the full $200,000," Shaw reported to his company. "I said I was willing to compete with Lay on any policy Foltz chose, to put it on a business basis, and either Lay or I get the whole $200,000."

Bass said he would explain the matter to Foltz when he arrived the next day, but that as matters stood then he thought he would have to go through with his agreement with Lay.

Shaw departed to attend to other business, agreeing to meet Bass and Foltz the following day. According to his custom when he was absent from the office near the close of the day, he telephoned about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and was informed that Schweich was anxious for him to call Dr. Bass at the Robert E. Lee Hotel. Shaw called Bass and was informed that Bass had learned that Foltz might reach Kansas City that night. Bass said he wanted more information about the policy, and that as Shaw was out Schweich had responded. Bass said it was not necessary for Shaw to come downtown, as Schweich had satisfied him about the Lincoln National, that he liked the policy and believed it would satisfy Foltz.

The following morning, Dec. 14, Bass telephoned Shaw that Foltz had arrived late the night before and was ready to discuss the policy.

"Planted" in Muehlebach. Bass was registered at the Robert E. Lee, which has moderate rates. But in carrying out the role of a wealthy retired broker just back from Japan, it was necessary that "Mr. Foltz" make some display of his wealth. Accordingly he was "planted" in the Muehlebach Hotel, the most pretentious in downtown Kansas City, and it was to the Muehlebach that Shaw was asked to go. Bass told him over the telephone that he and Shaw would meet in the lobby, as he wanted talk to Shaw again before he saw Foltz.

It appears that, notwithstanding the rehearsal, Bass was a little nervous about Foltz's ability to successfully carry out the role of Foltz, so at the meeting of Bass and Shaw in the lobby Bass told the agent not to argue with "Foltz."

"Don't argue with him," Bass said. "He has a peculiar temperament. He makes his decisions quickly, just like that (Bass snapping his fingers three or four times). Just present your policy as quickly as possible and if he does not like it, just forget it."

By that time Bass had come to the conclusion he could double-cross his Columbia insurance friend and told Shaw it would be all right to present an application for $300,000 to "Foltz," as Bass had decided Shaw's policy was much better than the one offered by Lay.

Bass told Shaw that he expected Lay to be in Kansas City that day, and that after taking Shaw up and introducing him to "Foltz," he would return to the lobby "to head Lay off."

If Bass had any fears about Foltz's ability to carry out his part of the fraud scheme, they were groundless. After the introduction, "Foltz" said he was "a little bit sleepy" and was tired, as he had driven from Manhattan, Kan., the day before, but that he was ready to hear what Shaw had to offer.

Bass Excused Himself.

Bass excused himself after asking how long it would take for Shaw to explain the policy. Shaw thought that from 30 to 45 minutes would be time enough, but "Foltz" suggested that Bass could wait an hour before returning, as it might take that long.

Shaw got down to business with "Foltz" immediately, asking about "Foltz's" family history. Foltz was ready with details of the Foltz family near Martinsburg. He knew the names of the father and mother of William Foltz, their ages, the names and ages of the brothers and sisters. Shaw told "Foltz" there might be some delay in getting the policy through the home office because of his long absence in Japan, and that the company might wish to make inquiries in Japan before issuing a policy of that size. "Foltz" ta" said he had no objection to a reasonable delay, as the investigation of the title to the land he was purchasing had not been completed, and might not be for two weeks.

Foltz's actions as "Foltz" in that he must have been coached carefully, Shaw saying that he demonstrated a surprising knowledge of the business. He asked searching questions about the Lincoln National, as to the amount of insurance it had in force, its total assets and asked for a comparison of its business with that of other companies.

He borrowed a pencil from Shaw and, without Shaw's help, made calculations as to the cost of the Emancipator policy in comparison with term insurance. He figured the workings of the adjustment options. He asked Shaw to give him the 10-year term insurance rate, and asked what would be the cash value of the Emancipator at the end of 10 years. He figured awhile and then announced that he had found that the net cost of the Emancipator, omitting interest, was less than that of a 10-year term at his age.

After nearly an hour "Foltz" said that he liked the policy, adding that he did not know much about insurance, as he was unmarried and never had felt the need for insurance. Shaw, having in mind the writing of $200,000, asked whether the applicant was under obligation to Bass' Columbia friend, as Shaw said he would like to write the full amount.

"Under No Obligations."

"I am under no obligation," he replied. "I will have to talk to Dr. Bass, but I see no reason why Lay should be given a chance to come back now and present a proposition to compete with yours."

Shaw departed to fill out the application and arrange for the medical examination, and telephoned the Muehlebach again about 12:30 o'clock. Neither "Foltz" nor Bass answered, but 15 minutes later Bass telephoned Shaw, telling him he had caught Lay in the lobby and had explained the matter to him.

"Lay has returned to Columbia, pretty much disappointed," Bass said. "But it's a good thing I got hold of him because, if he had gone up and talked to Foltz, he might have queered the whole deal by getting into an argument." Later that day Shaw met "Foltz" and Bass at the Muehlebach, and again Bass played a trump. Shaw's suspicions were not aroused, but if he had any they would have been allayed by "Foltz's" statement that he was not ready to sign the application. He said he and Bass were going on a 10-day hunting trip and the matter would wait until their return. Bass volunteered the information that he "would see that no other insurance man got hold of 'Foltz'." "Foltz" said there was no danger of that as he was sold on Shaw's company and on his policy.

The three departed from the hotel together, walking down Baltimore avenue. Bass said he would like to have "Foltz" meet Mr. Schweich, the general agent, and they walked to Shaw's and Schweich's office, two blocks from the hotel. The significance of this suggestion of Bass has appeared since Foltz was murdered. Schweich would be an additional person to identify Foltz's body as that of Foltz.

Foltz was introduced as Foltz to Schweich, and immediately said he could not wait, but that he would meet Bass later in Johnson's office.

Discussed Land Deal.

Schweich, Shaw and Bass sat in the office discussing the insurance and the land deal. Bass said "Foltz" knew no one in Kansas City, but he gave to Schweich as reference for "Foltz" the names of several persons, to all of whom Bass had introduced Foltz as "Foltz."

Schweich asked about the land deal and Bass drew a diagram of the land, and talked about it in detail. He said "Foltz" had assumed a mortgage of $111,000, which Bass said was again the land.

Shaw heard nothing more from Bass or "Foltz" until Saturday, Dec. 21, when Bass telephoned from Columbia that the hunting trip had been abandoned because of the deep snow and severe cold, and that he and "Foltz" would be in Kansas City the following Monday, Dec. 23.

Bass had been out of touch with Shaw for 10 days. Presumably he had no information as to whether insurance company representatives had become suspicious. It is interesting that in this telephone conversation with Shaw he attempted to show a great ignorance of insurance company systems, notwithstanding his exact knowledge shown by all the circumstances of the plot.

"In this telephone conversation," Shaw reported to his company, "Dr. Bass asked me if we had the policies. I told him that he knew matters were waiting for 'Foltz's' return for a medical examination. He said he thought we issued policies in our local office and held them until we received the doctors' O. K. I said, 'Certainly not,' that policies were issued at the home office. He said he didn't know, that he thought they were handled like fire insurance policies." Shaw was in his office all the morning of Monday, Dec. 23, the time at which Bass had said he and "Foltz" would be in Kansas City, but they did not appear, nor did he hear anything from them.

Got Telephone Call.

The following morning, Tuesday, Dec. 24, Shaw received a telephone call from Bass at his home at 3 o'clock, and in response Shaw went to the Muehlebach Hotel, where he met Bass in the lobby. Bass told him they had had a "terrible time" in the deep snow on the highways, and that they had had little luck on the hunting trip.

Proceeding to "Foltz's" room alone, Shaw met him. He said they had had a "bum hunting trip" and that he "didn't think much of Doc Bass as a weather prophet." He had almost frozen to death, he said.

That day the formalities of taking the application and of the medical examination were carried out. "Foltz," again explaining that he

TRACTION OFFICE HELD UP; $1192 TAKEN BY ROBBERS

Two Armed Men Steal Strong Boxes From Safe of Illinois Terminal Station in Granite City.

Two masked robbers, armed with revolvers, stole three strong boxes, containing $1192.50 in trolley receipts of the Illinois Terminal System, from an office of the company at Seventeenth street and

Grand avenue, Granite City, at 1:05 o'clock this morning. The only persons in the office at the time were W. G. Medders of St. Louis, night supervisor, and Alex Curry of Granite City, a trouble man. The strongboxes were taken from an unlocked safe. An armored car was to have called for them four hours later.

Medders and Curry think a companion waited for the robbers in an automobile, for they heard an automobile engine being started just as the robbers walked out.

Negro Watchman Bound by Men Caught in Building.

Making his rounds of the Victoria Building, Eighth and Locust streets, early yesterday, Fred Richardson, Negro watchman, noticed a light in the office of the Mound City Loan Co. on the fourth floor and started to investigate.

An armed and masked man stepped out of the office, forced the watchman to enter an elevator and tied him to the starting mechanism. Some time later three masked men left the office. One suggested they visit another office, but a second man objected: "No, let's not fool with those big safes; there's tear gas in them." Investigation showed the burglars had removed a rear window on the ground floor. They had hammered and sawed the combination and hinges of the loan company's safe and had drilled a hole into which to pour an explosive, but apparently had been frightened away before completing their work.

Mexican Indians Rebel.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, April 21.—Dispatches from the State of Chihuahua say that Salvador Varela, State Director of Education, has been ordered to visit the Tarahumara Indian tribe, in a remote mountain district near the Sonora border and to try to persuade them to cease from ravaging the countryside. The Indians, reported to have fallen under the influence of several white renegades passing themselves off as gods, have broken out in rebellion.

4 AUTO KILLINGS ON THE EAST SIDE; ONE UNIDENTIFIED

Three of Fatalities at East St. Louis, Other at Belleville—One Motorist Flees Scene.

Four persons were killed by automobiles on the East Side yesterday and today.

An unidentified white man about 45 years old was killed early today when struck by an automobile driven by Norman Cherry, a Negro, in front of 5600 West Main street, Belleville.

Cherry, who resides at Belleville, said a machine a short distance in front of him which swerved to avoid striking the man walking in the street, had obscured his vision and he was unable to turn aside in time. The man is described as being about 5 feet, 7 inches in height, and having brown hair and light blue eyes. A large nose, misshapen by a previous injury, and an inch-long scar on the chin are noticeable features. He was dressed in a gray suit, gray shirt, black shoes and a green flannel shirt. The body is held by the Gundlach Undertaking Co. for identification.

August Mansfield, 40 years old, an express company employe, was run over early yesterday as he alighted from a street car near his home, 614 State street. His skull, right arm and left leg were fractured. The driver, Roland Young, 19, 530 North Nineteenth street, was held for the coroner.

Police are seeking the driver of the machine who fled after killing John Polacek, 60, a cobbler, 1310 North Ninth street, who was struck shortly after Saturday midnight in the street in front of his home. Both legs and his skull were fractured. Fragments of a broken headlight at the scene indicated a small automobile had struck him. Neighbors had seen such a machine stop a short distance north of where the body was found and drive away hurriedly.

CHILD RETURNED BY FATHER

Mrs. Ethel Feiner Drops Habeas Corpus Suit Against Him.

A habeas corpus proceeding to regain possession of her 8-month-old child, Charles Edmund Feiner Jr., was dismissed today by Mrs. Ethel Feiner, 4919 Easton avenue, following the return of the child by her estranged husband yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Feiner, both 21 years old, separated March 31. Feiner taking the child with him to the home of his parents, 2194 McCausland avenue. Process servers had been unable to obtain service on Feiner, whose conduct in concealing the child was declared "inhuman" by Circuit Judge Rosskopf, to whom Mrs. Feiner told her story last Friday.

HOW BASS ARRANGED
ON PEARMAN'S LIFE

back. When he reached the hotel Bass was not there.

"Folta" said he and Bass were "dickerin'" about discounting the mortgage notes, that he had made an offer to Bass and Bass had made a counter offer, that they were "only $2000 apart."

Shaw in his report quoted "Folta" as saying "he had decided to clean up all the paper against the property," and believed they would come to terms, but that "Dr. Bass certainly did drive a hard bargain."

"Folta" laughed," Shaw said, "and said that he had dealt with lots of men, but thought Dr. Bass was just about the shrewdest fellow when it came to figuring with a short pencil of anybody he knew."

Bass came in about that time and "Folta" went out. Bass discussed with Shaw a proposal to insure several officers of the Columbia bank in which he was a director.

In the conversation, which was more than two months after the policies were issued, Bass for some reason directed attention to the fact that "Folta" wore a wig. It has developed that Pearman who was 47 years old, and who succeeded in palming himself off as Folta, 37 years old, wore a wig and shaved off his mustache to make his appearance more youthful as a part of the insurance fraud. Bass' purpose probably was that the time was approaching when Shaw would be called upon to identify "Folta's" body and the fact that he wore a wig would be detected.

Though Bass knew Pearman well, the subject of his wearing a wig never had come up in any of the negotiations for insurance, but at the early March meeting Bass told Shaw that he "had discovered Folta wore a toupee," that he had suddenly gone into "Folta's" room and saw him arranging the wig on his head. Bass asked Shaw whether he had noticed it and Shaw replied that at times he had thought so, but was not certain.

March 21, less than a week before the murder, Shaw saw "Folta" for the last time, meeting him on the street in Kansas City.

And that is the story of how easily $200,000 of insurance was obtained on the life of an impostor, in the greatest attempted insurance fraud of recent history.

COMMITTEE PROPOSES PLAN FOR STEADY EMPLOYMENT

Working of Full Force Part Time Rather Than Reduction in Men Urged in New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Recommendations for a procedure to provide steady employment the year around are incorporated in a preliminary report of Gov. Roosevelt's Unemployment Committee, just published.

The report said the committee had examined the plans and experiences of more than 200 leading corporations engaged in relieving the unemployment situation. The first recommendation is "that steady work the year around be incorporated in business men's thinking so that it may assume major importance in the employer's daily plans and actions."

More attention by State, city and town governments to planning their construction and purchasing activities so that important contracts may be held back in time of prosperity and pushed forward in times of depression is recommended. For immediate action the committee endorsed the recommendations of the Merchants' Association of New York, which included "working full force part time rather than a reduced force full time" and the "manufacture of stock to the limit of economic wisdom," as well as a "diplomatic wage, or two weeks' notice."

DIES AFTER ILLEGAL OPERATION

The death of Miss Eunice Smith, 17-year-old waitress of 304A Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, at Christian Welfare Hospital Saturday, was caused by blood poisoning which resulted from an illegal operation, Coroner Boyne of East St. Louis announced today.

The coroner said his investigation developed that three physicians had treated the young woman during a period of several months. An effort to ascertain who performed the operation is being made, pending an inquest Wednesday.

5000 Visit Friend's Grave.
By the Associated Press.
MALDEN, Mass., April 21.—More than 5000 persons visited Holy Cross Cemetery yesterday, nearly all stopping at the grave of the Rev. Patrick J. Power, which was the scene of pilgrimages of hundreds of thousands last fall, seeking miraculous cures. It was the largest crowd to visit the cemetery since it was reopened to the public last month. State troopers had no difficulty in keeping the throng moving.

BYRD'S MEN ENJOY TROPIC LIFE OF TAHITI

Party on City of New York Reluctant to Leave, Medical Officer Writes.

By DR. FRANCIS D. COMAY, Medical Officer of the Byrd Anti-arctic Expedition.

(Copyright by the Byrd Expedition, Inc., the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)
ON BOARD THE BARK CITY OF NEW YORK, April 19.—At sunset last evening the City of New York put to sea from Papeete after one of the most pleasant and interesting visits any of us could recall. Received and honored by Governor-General Bougea and former Queen Maratara and by the consular representatives in Tahiti, and entertained by friends throughout the island, we experienced neither disillusionment nor boredom for a moment of our six-days stay here. With the greatest of ease we left the crew of the Eleanor Bolling to enjoy for a while longer the hospitality of the island on which both native and adopted Tahitians pass their tranquil existence.

Soon enough we will be back in the midst of production and narrow competition. So much did we regret leaving these isles that this morning when we were forced to turn back and set ashore four stowaways who had deserted from a tramp steamer now in Papeete.
The sight of Tahiti at dawn is such a delightful and precious experience that anything else becomes quite secondary.

Life in Tahiti.
Now on a breathless sea while we slowly parch, we look back at the evenings at the Tahiti Yacht Club and at Tuscally and Talofa where Bernt Balchen and Henry Harrison showed such undreamed possibilities as hosts; evenings when the darkness was heavy with jasmine and the air pulsated to the strumming of guitars, one scarcely knew whether one was dreaming or hearing the soft contralto voices approach and recede into the distance. There were frequently when, in deep easy chairs on a breeze-swept veranda, with glasses of cool fruit juice at our elbows, we watched some island beauty interpret in perfect rhythm the ancient songs of her forefathers; evenings when as the full moon rose through the copra palms we swam far out in the velvet waters to the booming surf on the coral reef.

Days passed like the recurring melodies in a symphonic poem; a situation admittedly a bit unusual for the shore leave of a group of sea-faring men. In the half light before dawn Crockett or Blackburn might already be found outside the reef trolling for bonitas or tuna from outer rigged canoes or native fishing smacks. The shouts of the native men accompanying them could be heard across the water as tense with a child-like sympathy of excitement they cried out, "Toon Ah? Toon Ah?"

Tropics at Their Best.
Or as the mists still hung in the deep gorges which cut these fantastic peaks from top to bottom
Carl Petersen or Frank Davies might be found pushing their way through the lush vegetation on the mountain trails along hidden streams noisy in their precipitous push on past groves of lemons or citron until they reached the fragrant heights of a plateau vanilla plantation where the generous old couple like Baucis and Philemon bade them rest and set before them fruits and wheaten loaf and honey and milk of the cocoa-nut and refused any recompense.
"God has given us these things and we give them to you gladly."
Those of us who have seen other tropic isles and other people feel somehow that in Tahiti and Moorea where the Princess Turea made us welcome finds the best in wholesome cleanliness, beauty and harmony that the tropics can offer.

Capt. McKinley Reaches New York
With His Negatives.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 21.—Capt.
Ashley C. McKinley, St. Louis, aerial surveyor of the Byrd expedition, returned here yesterday with the negatives of an air map of 170,000 square miles of the Antarctic and a vivid recollection of a "hickish moment or two" on his flight with Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd to the South Pole.

Capt. McKinley came here by train from San Francisco, having arrived on one of the steamers which left Dunedin, New Zealand, shortly after the arrival of Byrd and his comrades.

He said he used a 40-pound camera from the windows of the trimotored monoplane, Floyd Bennett, to snap at the South Pole at the moment Byrd dropped the American flag, weighted with a stone from Bennett's grave. He made a continuous pictorial record of the flight.

The crisis on the trip came, he declared, when the Floyd Bennett failed to gain altitude over the Axel Heiberg glacier and food was dumped to enable Bernt Balchen, the pilot, to lift the plane to a pass between towering mountains.
"The plane went up splendidly," he said, "and we cleared the peak with about 200 feet to spare.
Ahead of us was a plateau and we sped smoothly for the Pole. The Admiral was taking sights, and we were all so darned busy with our special jobs that we would not have known we were at the Pole if the Admiral had not dropped the flag."

British Gunboat Beached.
SHANGHAI, April 21.—The British river gun boat Peterel struck a rock and has been beached in the Yangtze Kiang near Changchow.

Oil Man's Own Story: Tells of Ride to Town Where Son Found Him

Captors Took Number of Detours to Avoid Soldiers—Lights in Houses Kept Bandits Posted as to Danger.

This is the ninth installment of the story of J. H. Briscoe of San Antonio, Tex., who was held 39 days by Mexican outlaws. The story was told by Briscoe to Merle Blackley of the Oklahoma City Times. Blackley accompanied Briscoe's son, Otto Briscoe, and another American, when they went into Mexico to pay the ransom.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 21.—I had a good night's sleep there under the stars, and when morning came I was feeling fine. The outlaw chieftain had told me it wouldn't be long before the ransom would be paid and I would be free again. Briscoe took me to my family in the United States, the family I had thought many times I would never see again.

The eight Cristeros, who had broken me captive for a month, gathered around me. They seemed to want to make friends. One of them, reached inside his shirt and drew out a crucifix. The Cristeros, criminal and hoodlums, as they are, take their religion seriously. They rob and ransack and hold for ransom merely because there is nothing else for them to do.

He held the crucifix in front of me and I took it. He wanted me to sing another hymn. On a number of nights, I had sung to these barbarians and they liked it. They liked sacred songs especially well. I sang "I Am a Soldier of the Cross." It pleased them.

Promised Him Protection.

At noon we had wild turkey. One of the outlaws had brought one down with a rock. We were hiding the Federal soldiers were close and the bandits were afraid to shoot. On several nights we had gone to bed hungry while wild turkeys roasted in nearby trees. After dinner they gathered around and told me they were my "amigos," or friends. Gain in Weight and Health in 21 Days or Nothing to Pay Says Your Druggist.

If you are anxious to increase your weight and at the same time transform yourself into a sturdy, forceful, virile young man, this advice will help you.

Pharmacists everywhere will tell you that you can never gain in weight unless your body is plentifully supplied with Nature's own Vitamins, and the sure and speedy way to get these Vitamins is the modern way—in tablet form.

You might get enough Vitamins by drinking a gallon of milk and eating a pound of butter every day, besides what food you regularly eat—but what's the use.

You can get to your druggist this very day and get a box of McCre's Cod Liver Oil Extreme Tablets which contain no drugs—but are shockingly healthy and weight building Vitamins.

Take two of these tablets after each meal and two at bedtime for 21 days, then if you aren't satisfied with the increase in weight—if you don't feel stronger, more energetic and vigorous, get your money back—no tablets, 40 cents—take them after and summer and get your money back—all the year around. Just ask for McCre's at any drug store.

KING TUT-KAUFMAN BOUT FEATURES TONIGHT'S SHOW AT THE ARENA

MALLOY'S CARD DOMINATED BY PUNCH; SCHWAKE MEETS PERUVIAN

The Arena Card

King Tut vs. Pinky Kaufman (10 rounds at 140 pounds). Referee—Walter Helmer.
 Peewee Kaiser vs. Lou Terry (10 rounds at 131 pounds). Referee—Harry Cook.
 My Sullivan vs. Jack Horner (10 rounds at 153 pounds). Referee—Bob Parkinson.
 Tiger Johnny Cline vs. Al Stillman (five rounds at 165 pounds). Referee—Harry Kessler.
 Shuffle Callahan vs. Jack Barry (five rounds at 165 pounds). Referee—Harry Kessler.
 Genio Peru vs. John Schwake (five rounds, heavyweights). Referee—Al Neist.
 Eddie Goldberg vs. Mickey Cummings (five rounds at 153 pounds). Referee—Al Neist.
 Starting time—8:30 p. m. first bout.

By W. J. McGoogan.

The main art of self-defense is a Jack Dempsey—the best defense is a vigorous offense—will be put on display at The Arena tonight in seven bouts which are scheduled for a total of 60 rounds of boxing under the direction of Promoter Mike Malloy at prices designed to fit any purse.

Plenty of Action Promised.

Malloy was told on previous visits to this city that St. Louis fans like fighters and not boxers. He declares that in making up his bill for tonight's show he tried to give those who like slugging matches their fill at one sitting and has chosen but one man on the whole card who ranks on his record, as a first-class boxer. At that he is known to possess quite a punch in addition to being clever. He is My Sullivan, St. Paul welterweight, who is to meet Jackie Horner of St. Louis in one of the three 10-round bouts which top the program.

All of the men are in the city, most of them have been here for the better part of a week. They completed their training at various gymnasiums yesterday and all are reported to be in good condition, although Genio Peru received a blow in the eye in a workout with Dave Knott Saturday which darkened the outlook for him in his bout with John Schwake.

King Tut Meets Tough Foe. The feature bout of the evening, or at least the one about which the rest of the card has been built, is between King Tut of Minneapolis and Pinky Kaufman, New York. They have fought twice before. On the occasion of their first meeting Kaufman scored a knockout over Tut in two rounds, while in their next bout Tut gained a popular decision in 10 rounds.

Tut is anxious to wipe the stain of that knockout from his record while Kaufman, should he again stop the "King" would regain the title spotlight he lost when Bruce Flowers knocked him out last December.

Johnny Kaiser and Lou Terry, local boys, will fight the other 10-round bout at 131 pounds. It will be a return match, for they recently went 10 rounds at the Coliseum to a draw in a bout which had the fans on their feet cheering at the end—positive proof that the bout was a good one.

Supporting these three fights will be four five-round affairs, the chief being between Al Stillman, St. Louis, and Tiger Johnny Cline of Kansas City. Stillman has fought 33 professional fights in a little more than a year, has won them all and scored knockouts in 25 of them. Cline is a good boy as he showed when he boxed 10 hard rounds with Chuck Heffner at The Arena recently.

Schwake Tackles Peruvian. Schwake, another St. Louis boy, will try to show the Racquet Club syndicate that it made a mistake in taking Genio Peru under its wing as a prospective heavyweight champion rather than himself. John has a powerful right-hand punch and Genio probably will be called upon to demonstrate whether he can stand punishment. Peru, whose real name is Eugenio Chevere, has not fought for more than a year while Schwake has eight bouts recently.

Shuffle Callahan, Chicago southpaw, and Jack Barry, Virden, Ill., are scheduled to go five rounds at 165 pounds, but in bouts in which Shuffle engages either his opponent or himself is usually on the floor before five rounds are over. Callahan has fought virtually all of the good ones in his class and his face shows it for it is a numerous scars, most testimony to his hard years in the ring.

Eddie Goldberg, St. Louis, and Mickey Cummings, Scott Field, start the program in a five-round bout which the promoter hopes will be as good as any as these two

Shows in Feature Bout at The Arena

KING TUT, considered one of the leading candidates for Sammy Mandell's lightweight title, who opposes Pinky Kaufman, another veteran in the main 10-round battle. Kaufman, in an earlier match, stopped the King in two rounds.

DAVIS CUP AGES WIN PINEHURST DOUBLES TITLE

By the Associated Press.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 21.—Men's singles honors in the United North and South tennis tournament today rested with John Doe of Santa Monica, Cal., while William Allison of Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn of Orange, N. J., held the doubles title.

Doe succeeded to the title which Van Ryn had held by trimming Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., in the final match yesterday, 6-0, 6-1, 6-3. Teamed with George Lott of Chicago, Doe was beaten in the doubles final, 5-6, 6-4, 6-4, by Allison and Van Ryn.

The left-handed Californian, third in national ranking, appeared to be at the top of his game, while Mangin was decidedly off form.

Early in the contest it was apparent that the Jersey str was in for a decisive beating. An ankle, badly swollen after a sprain, and a blistered heel bothered Mangin to such an extent that he failed to go after some apparently easy gets.

BROWNS TO OPEN HERE TOMORROW AGAINST TIGERS

of young pitchers who have shown well. Young Wyatt stopped the Browns "dead" in Detroit after George Uhle had been clubbed, while Elton Hogsett, the left-hander from Toronto, won his opening start, although he had to be rescued by Wyatt. Other pitchers who have appeared for Harris are Earl Whitehill, veteran southpaw, who held the Browns to one run and three hits in six innings; Owen Carroll and Herring, another recruit.

Herring Club's Big Need.

The consensus is that the Tigers will prove dangerous if they get much good hurling. Either Whitehill or Carroll will face the Browns in the opener here, while Killefer probably will rely on Alvin Crowder.

Friel announced that there was nothing new regarding the holdout pitcher, George Blalock. He also said the recent report that the Browns would soon send Blalock to Washington in exchange for "Goose" Goslin, was nothing more than a "pipe dream."

boys fought at the Coliseum last Tuesday night. The boxers will take it easy today with the weighing in details scheduled to start at 3 p. m. Dr. Herby Lund will conduct the physical examinations for the State Commission and Dr. Herby certainly gives them a good going over.

ST. LOUIS BOYS IN THE MINORS

In the opening game of the season, between Beaumont and Waco of the Texas League, which Beaumont won in the ninth, 4 to 3, three St. Louisans figured in the contest.

Bill Mullen, playing third base for Beaumont, jumped into the spotlight in the final inning with his second double of the game to score the winning run. Mullen made three hits out of five times at bat, and had five chances in the field without an error. Joe Munson, in right field for Waco, had three hits out of four times at the plate, and Frankie Zoellers, in left field, got one hit out of four. Mullen was with Reading of the International, Munson with Tulsa of the Western, and Zoellers with Atlanta of the Southern Association last year.

Phil Hensick, pitching his first game of the season for Fort Worth of the Texas League, held Dallas to four hits, to win, 5 to 1. Hensick was with Decatur of the Three-I League last season.

With 10,000 customers on hand for the opening game between Missions and Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League, which the latter won 21 to 14, Eddie Mulligan, Missions' veteran third sacker, showed at his best, despite the score, and made three hits out of six trips to the plate.

Allyn Stout, Webster Groves lad, pitching his first full game of the season for Joe Schulte's Houston team of the Texas League, defeated Beaumont, 4 to 3, winning but seven hits, and fanned eight of the Exporters. Stout was with Laurel of the Cotton States League last season.

Harry "Swats" Swacina, former Pittsburgh first sacker, and veteran of the baseball diamond, made his debut as umpire in the Western League, last Saturday in the game with Denver opening at St. Joseph, Mo.

Minneapolis of the American Association owes Nashville of the Southern Association some players in part payment of a deal and Manager Clarence Rowland wanted the Millers to part with Henry (Nick) Cullop, but the nothing-doing sign was posted, and Cullop was in center field for the Millers on opening day against Toledo. The Millers lost, 9 to 1, but Nick got one for two, the hit being a triple.

Emmett Mulvey, an outfielder who played with clubs in the Western League last season, and who was with Mobile of the Southern Association this spring, has been released.

Clarence Hoffman, the Belleville boy sent by the White Sox to Indianapolis of the American Association, was in center field for the Indians in the opening game with the champion Kansas City Blues, which Indianapolis won, 3 to 2, and got two hits out of four times at bat.

Harold Anderson played center field and batted in the lead-off position and Oscar Royster was at first base and batting in the clean-up spot for St. Paul in the

M'KENDREE TEAM FAVORED TO WIN IN NIGHT MEET

By the Associated Press.

LEBANON, Ill., April 21.—The McKendree College Beacrest track team will vie for honors in the only home track meet of the year, Thursday night, when a quadrangular meet will be held for the first time at night in this section of the country. The other teams which will compete are Cape Girardeau, Shurtleff College and Southern Illinois Normal University.

According to the dope, the Beacrests should cop the tilt, with Carbondale trailing close behind, and the weak Shurtleff and Cape teams far in the rear. The Beacrests should enjoy a sweep in nearly all of the track events, while Carbondale is expected to show plenty of punch in the weights.

McKendree has two stars, in William Saunders, the Carlyle flyer, who stepped the century in 10 seconds flat and the 220 in 32.4, in a time trial a few days ago, and Steve Novotny of Bond, who is a high jumper, broad jumper, and is equally versatile in the shot and discus. The Beacrests also have a punch in 440 and the 330 in Tedor and Hoffman, while the longer runs ought to be ably handled by L. Church and Spencer.

Has Won One Meet. So far McKendree has one victory to its credit. A couple of weeks ago the Purple took the measure of the Springfield Teachers 10 to 55, with Shurtleff trailing with only 14 points. Shurtleff is not conceded much of a chance for victory, nor is Cape, which was badly defeated by Carbondale in a dual meet recently.

Probably the outstanding star for Carbondale is the weight ace, Bricker, who tosses the discus close to 137 feet, and the shot well over 44 feet. He is likely to take firsts in both events, inasmuch as the McKendree weight man, Todd, is suffering with a bad shoulder muscle.

The following men will be entered by Coach Filley of McKendree: Sprinta, Saunders and Meyer; middle distance, Tedor, Hoffman; Hines; long-distance runs, Church, Spencer; hurdles, Tucker and Novotny; weights, Novotny, Saunders, V. Church; and in the jumping events, Novotny, Meyer, Rawlinson and Saner; relay, Tedor, Meyer, Todd, Saunders.

"Wild Bill" Hallahan was plenty wild against the Cubs last Friday but he wasn't half as wild as Hack Wilson and Rog Hornsby when he struck them out with the bases loaded.

Hack went down swinging which probably saved him from the fit of apoplexy he would have had if the ump had called the third one on him.

Hack is a terrible good ball player but he and the umpire simply can't agree on what constitutes a strike.

Hack takes the position that a ball is one that he doesn't expect at and a strike is a ball that he swings at and misses. When the ump gets so they can view the proposition in that light they'll get along fine with Hack.

However, if it wasn't for balls and strikes the umpire would rank second to the bat boy in importance.

It has been said that difference of opinion makes horse racing possible. And by the same token it sometimes makes baseball almost impossible.

If a manager didn't take up the customers' valuable time protesting when there isn't the slightest ground for said protest he wouldn't be what is known to the trade as a "hustling" manager.

On His Toss. For instance if Joe McCarthy hadn't protested Jim Rottemberg's home run the other day when the ball was deflected back into the field by a spectator, he would have lost caste, prestige, self-respect and equal standing and subjected himself to a drubbing court martial in what is popularly known as "the old army game."

Futile fumes and pointless protests are part and parcel of the pastime and if it cut out would so curtail the game that they would have to increase the innings to 10 to take up the slack and give the consumer his quid pro quo.

EDWARDSVILLE TURNS TO INDEPENDENT BASEBALL SCHEDULE
 The Edwardsville Regulars, one of the strongest baseball clubs in southern Illinois, has turned to an independent schedule for the 1930 season, due to the fact that the southwestern Illinois League, of which they won the pennant last year, has failed to organize. The club would like to hear from strong players to games either at their home in Edwardsville or on the road. Communications may be sent to Edwardsville Baseball Club, 21 North Main street, Edwardsville, Ill.

Edwardsville has lost several players to the minor leagues this spring, but Manager Roy Jenkins has used material on hand with which to fill the gap. Those who graduated include Harris Berenson, John Drost and John Loefer. The McCook, Nebraska, State League; Harold Schmidt to Springfield, Waco, Texas State League; Warren Robinson on the local line; Fred Hartman, pitcher; Carroll Jones, catcher; Joe P. HAGEN PLANS A GOLF COMEBACK ON U. S. LINKS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—It develops that Walter Hagen's main reason for passing up the British open golf championship this year, after two straight triumphs on the U. S. links and a total of four altogether, was a desire to get down to more serious competitive business at home. . . . In short, Hagen plans a home-land comeback.

For nearly a decade Hagen has been doing much better on foreign battlefields than he has on the native fields of golfing combat. He first won the British open in 1912, repeated in 1924 and again in 1925 and 1929. Whether from the wear and tear of so much traveling or the lack of preparation, or both, "The Hag" has come home home with the biggest trophies only to be a "bust" in the American open, year after year.

Hagen has not won the American open since 1919. In fact, he had not even been close to it, for while he was runner-up in 1921 at Oaklumbia he was nine strokes behind Lanky Jim Barnes, who won by the biggest margin on record. Since then, Hagen has never been better than fourth. He came back from England in triumph last June but was never a contender in the National open at Winged Foot.

The upshot is that the dapper Hagen, who takes as much pride in his achievements as he does in his attire on the links, has decided to do something about it. He will return in June from an Australian junket with nothing to do but get in shape for the American open championship at the Interlachen Club, Minneapolis, early in July. Sir Walter will do this by the simple expedient of going to the Minneapolis for at least two good weeks of rest and practice. Meanwhile, the champion, Bobby Jones, along with Horton Smith and Lee Diegel, will hustle back from England barely in time to reach Interlachen for a day or two of practice before the battle is on.

By including this data Uncle Sam could have saved the Literary Digest a lot of money and given us the real low down on the wet and dry situation.

FATHER OF CHAMPIONS!

Record Maker Lexington, Blind, Produced Greatest Horses of American Turf

By Vincent Treanor

Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Lexington, the immortal record breaker and blind sire of the greatest race horses ever produced anywhere! Man O' War, Sysonby, Salvator, Tenny, Colin, Sir Barton and a half-dozen or more famous race horses are mere bywords to racing's historians compared to the name of Lexington. He was the daddy of them all. Directly or indirectly Lexington was the founder, the background of everything pertaining to horse racing in this country. His career was one of horse romance and pathos. Probably no other horse will ever take his place.

The mere mention of Lexington's name sends the blood tingling through the veins of owners and trainers even to this day. It was through him that horses of two and three generations have come down to us. And what horses! There are few racers of today that are not traceable to Lexington and further down you will find those which in granddaddy's days were household words. For many years after his own accomplishments as a racer, the sons and daughters of Lexington were champions of the American turf and, though it sounds strange, there were many stakes run in their day in which every starter was sired by him.

236 Were Winners.

Through considerable research, aided by good old Clem McCarthy, a veritable encyclopedia on the thoroughbred, we learn that the sire of Lexington was $1,159,321 even in those far back days when large purses were rare. In 22 years in the stud the exceptional horse sired about 600 horses of both sexes and 236 of them were winners. Their earnings would have been fabulous in these days of enormous stakes and purses. His idlewild was the greatest mare of her day and his Norfolk was the first Jersey Derby in 1864, the first race of that name ever run in America. For 14 consecutive years thereafter, Lexington led the sire of the country.

Norfolk was produced in 1861 along with Kentucky and Asteroid. $50,000 was refused for Asteroid while Kentucky brought $40,000. Later, Kentucky beat Asteroid and then, or in his prime, could not have been bought for either sum. Kentucky in turn sired Emperor of Norfolk, who was champion 2-year-old of 1885. Other wonderful horses sired by Lexington were Harry Bassett, conqueror of the famous Longfellow in the Saratoga Cup of 1872; Duke of Malaga, champion of his year and Prentiss after which the rich Pimlico stake of today is named.

Even the daughters of Lexington helped to perpetuate his great name, sending to the races such as Parole, Spendthrift, Luke Blackburn, Salvator, Sensation, Foxhall, Hindoo, a name to conjure with even now; George Kinney, Ten Brock, Hymyar, Aristides and a host of others. There is a thrill in

Veteran Handicapper Calls All Horse Players Stupid

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 21.—"The thoroughbred race horse is an obsolete imbecile, a sissy. But dumber still are the chumps who bet on him."

Man and boy, Walter Vosburgh, official handicapper of the Metropolitan Jockey Club for more than 30 years has watched the fools parade of bipped and quadruped pass in review over a half century of horse racing and, if he has no illusions about the horse he loves, he holds even fewer for the gamblers he detests.

Perched high in the stewards' stand, day in and day out, his age-wise eye has seen much that was strange in the panorama below, but to him, the stranger of all is the man who thinks he can beat the races.

End in Gutter.

"They all end in the gutter," he said, sententiously. And even if his lips didn't add, "where they belong," the implication behind his attitude of withering contempt was unmistakable. His unspoken indictment plainly said that they were arrant fools and deserved to be.

Did he ever bet on the horses? It appeared that he had once been so credulous. But, like whooping cough and knee pads, he managed to outgrow it. He made his last bet it seemed, in 1887, and never again was tempted to make another. Why? The comeback was terse.

"Because it was a crooked race," said he, with a brief frown at the recollection, "and I made up my mind promptly that betting on horses, even as a pastime, wasn't a game for a sane man."

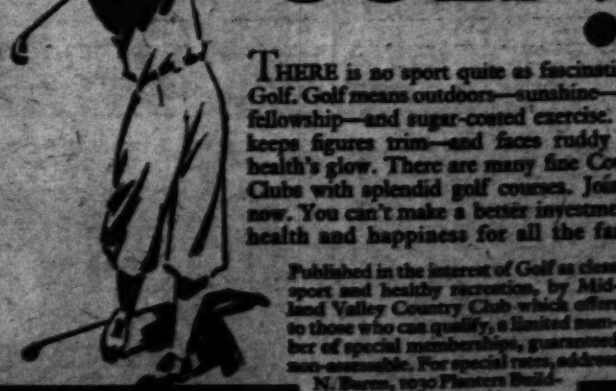

His position as handicapper, of course, precludes the possibility of making a wager on a race and the man obviously prefers it so. Not that, he could be tempted. As a matter of fact, he has found that his greatest mead of enjoyment comes from the thrill of a good horse race, unspiced by bias or the hope of financial reward. "Fools," he calls the gamblers, and his snort of derision is that of a man who has found that he can get the gold of solid enjoyment for nothing where others get only tinsel at the price of a fortune.

Libbe de Weitz, Back.

In the last 26 years, this patriarch of the tracks has missed only two racing days and then only because of illness. So, in spite of his lack of illusion about the horse's intelligence, he really loves the animal and asks nothing more than to be allowed to stand at the stewards' rail and with his gorge rising, watch the rhythm and grace and sheer power of a thoroughbred in motion.

Man O' War, he believes, is the greatest horse he ever has seen, although there are as many as a

LABARBA MEETS BUD TAYLOR ON DEMPSEY'S CARD

Bears Oppose Illinois Wesleyan In Game Today

With Ted Sauselle moved from first to fourth place in the batting order to improve the punch of the team, the Washington University Bears will take the field this afternoon against Illinois Wesleyan University of Bloomington, Ill. The game will be played at Liggett Field on the Washington U. campus, starting at 3:30 o'clock. Either Bill Leyhe or Orville Paul, the one-armed star, will get the pitching assignment.

Sauselle, in batting in the clean-up position, takes the place of Bert Friedman, left fielder, who swung in the clean-up post in Washington's first game of the season against Wisconsin U. in that game the Bears were defeated, 5 to 4, in 11 innings.

Today's game will mark the beginning of a busy period for Washington, which has five games scheduled in the next eight days. On Wednesday they meet Concordia at Concordia, and then clash in a return game at Liggett Field Friday. Next Monday the Bears will oppose Westminster College at Fulton, Mo., and the day following will play Missouri U. at Columbia.

The Bears' probable lineup yesterday: Friedman, 1b; Werner, 2b; Coover, rf; Sauselle, ss; Jablonaky, c; Smith, 1b; Rawdon, cf; Meyer, 3b; Leyhe or Paul, p.

SOUTH SIDES BOWL TO LEAD IN CITY CLASS PIN TOURNEY WITH 3126

KASTNER PAGES HIS MATES WITH TOTAL OF 724; WILSON IS NEXT

Sensational bowling by the South Sides Chevrolet marked yesterday's round in the City Class tournament at the Wellston Recreation alleys.

The quintet, led by Frank Kastner, put over a total of 3126 with three consistent games of 1005, 1034 and 1087. The total is 36 pins better than the one which recently won high honors in the American Bowling Congress.

Kastner was at his best and added just another 700 total to his long list for the season, when he counted 724. His partner in double Jim Wilson, gave him the greatest assistance with 693, backing up games of 181 and 233 with a 279 total. Roy Fleish had 651, Andy Leicht 546 and J. Duchek 512.

The total for the South Sides was more than 250 pins better than that for the Golden Eagle Five, which rolled into second place in Class A with a count of 2892. Chris Bettrell paced the team with 645.

Will o' the Wisp.

ATHLETES continue to pursue that fabled, 9.2-5 seconds for the 100-yard dash.

Saturday night official clockers caught Cy Leland, fleet Texan, in new world record time, the coveted 9.2-5 seconds. But it will not be allowed as a high wind helped him along to invalidate his claim. And, besides, he used starting blocks, which have not yet been recognized by the International Athletic Federation.

Today the world record still stands at 9.3-5 seconds, just as it stood when Arthur Duffey of Georgetown University first wrote it into athletic history more than a quarter of a century ago.

Many famous runners have pursued that will o' the wisp, 9.2-5 seconds since then. Several men have surpassed the official record. But none has succeeded in gaining recognition of his achievement. Jimmy Rector was one of the athletes of two decades ago to better the actual time; but a favoring wind barred his mark.

George Simpson has bettered the time, but the use of starting blocks has handicapped his world-wide recognition as the smasher of the figure set by Duffey.

If memory serves correctly the Negro sprinter, Howard Drew, who tied the world record several times, once surpassed it without having the mark officially acknowledged.

It seems strange that with records falling in almost every line of track and field endeavor, the century dash mark has remained unbeatable. To lower the mark to 9.2-5 seconds from its present figure would require the runner to increase his speed just one stride of less than seven feet.

Concentration on starting, improved tracks and improved timing, all have failed to give the runner the required acceleration needed to establish a new record.

Is it impossible to beat it?

The "Man-Killing" Marathon.

LONG years ago, when the marathon run of 26 miles 385 yards first came to St. Louis, medical circles and athletic reformers threatened to have the sport wiped out as cruel and inhuman. It was argued that the test was too great for mere man to endure.

Saturday, Clarence De Mar, age 42, for the seventh time won the Boston marathon. In addition he has won some 10 other marathon events. And he has thrived on it. There is practically no other track and field event, with the possible exception of some of the weight features, in which an athlete could stand up with the youngsters at such an age as De Mar's.

Nor is it because De Mar is an unusual physical freak. Marathon men are noted for their durability and athletic longevity.

Our own Joe Forshaw, himself a marathoner of unusual prestige more than two decades ago, was physically so good a year ago, that gray hair and age notwithstanding, he was able to play as a regular member of an ice hockey team.

Bricklayer Bill Kennedy is still running marathons to advertise Port Chester and his own good constitution at the age of 50. No "man-killing" stuff is evident in these instances.

The fact is that all the "slow-explosion" sports are healthful. The greatest wear and tear in athletic events seems to come from the sprints, especially the 440-yard dash or the short relays. The quarter mile is considered the man-killer of them all. Marathon running is comparatively only a jog, beside the last-gasp stuff that the quarter mile requires.

Nobody Hurt.

FOR the matter of that few events and field games are punishing unless repeated at too frequent intervals. The best proof of this is the decathlon event in which the competing individuals are required to go through 10 different tests, sometimes all within one day, although usually the competition lasts two days.

Buster Charles, the Onondaga Indian who captured the Kansas relays all around title Saturday, won five firsts out of the 10 events and was second three times and third in the other two events. He didn't even breathe unusually hard. Had he been alive in 1896 he could, single handed, have won the first revival of the Olympic Games held at Athens, and by better records in some events than the members of the United States team of that year achieved.

Naturally one would think that participating in 10 events in one day would hurt an athlete. And the same goes for a marathon run. As a matter of fact De Mar was welched before and after his long distance run and lost only five pounds on that long grind.

with a team of the leading women golfers of the United States.

Seven years ago, after having played golf for her health, about three months, Mrs. Hill was persuaded to enter the qualifying round of a tri-state tournament in order to swell the entry list. Her score for 18 holes was 143. She enrolled for lessons the next day, practiced consistently and with practice came titles, national recognition and now a European trip.

Mrs. Hill is married and the mother of a 16-year-old son. She left Kansas City for New York Saturday.

GILBERT WILL OPPOSE MILLER IN WELTER GO IN OVERLAND CARD

Myrtle Gilbert, walloping Olympian A. C. welterweight, and George Miller of the Business Men's Gymnasium, have been signed to meet in one of the special matches on Wednesday night's amateur boxing card at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 2400 Woodson road, in Overland, St. Louis County. Five special matches and three postliminaries will make up the complete card.

A hard fight is expected when Farrell Moore, Mississippi Valley Athletic Association welterweight champion, tackles Bill Finnegan of the South Broadway A. C. In a recent battle Finnegan lost to Moore by a shade in Duqu, Ill.

The featherweight feature will be between Dan Durso of the Olympian A. C. and George West, slugging South Broadway A. C. mauler. Durso is trained to the minute and feels confident that he will reverse the defeat he received recently at the hands of West.

NAVAL PACT LONG FORWARD STEP, STIMSON ASSERTS

Calls London Agreement a Practical Application of the Peaceful Declarations of the Kellogg Treaty.

ONE OF PROBLEMS PRESENTED SOLVED

From London, Secretary of State Speaks by Radio to Associated Press Luncheon in New York.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Speaking across the Atlantic to the annual luncheon of the Associated Press, Secretary of State Stimson described the London naval agreement today as a long step forward in world diplomacy.

The treaty about to be signed, said the head of the American delegation to London, represented a practical application of the peaceful declarations of the Kellogg antiwar pact, limiting at once the armaments of the United States, Great Britain and Japan, and holding a promise of future agreement also as to the naval establishments of France and Italy.

Stimson's address, listened to by the members of the Associated Press at their luncheon here, was broadcast also throughout the United States by the National Broadcasting Co.

Two Problems Prevented.

"The work of the London conference," Stimson said, "has really comprised two quite separate naval problems: the problem of the relations between the navies of the United States, Great Britain and Japan on the one hand and the problem of the relations between the navies of Great Britain, France and Italy on the other. These are quite distinct problems. The first of these has been solved.

"In the second of these problems, reliable discussions have been had and the underlying questions upon which a final solution must rest have been explored and clarified."

The Secretary said it was not America's business to enter into the political questions of European nations' relations, but that "sitting on the side lines it had been quite evident that the result of the conference has been to clarify issues and to make their solution in the future more possible."

Related to Kellogg Pact.

"I should like to make clear to you that the success of the London naval conference is necessarily related to the success of the Kellogg pact," he continued.

"The good resolutions of that pact cannot stand alone. They must be followed by national efforts to make them good and no line of effort offers a better earnest of its success than the line of naval disarmament."

Text of Speech.

The text of Stimson's address follows:

"Mr. Noyes and gentlemen of the Associated Press:

"When I had the pleasure of meeting the directors of the Associated Press last January at the dinner given by Mr. Clegg I warned you that the London conference would be a prosaic performance. I prophesied that what it lacked in drama it would make up in length. I think you will agree with me that my prophecy has been fulfilled."

"Because it has involved tedious and necessarily private negotiation it would be a great error to jump to the conclusion that it does not contain dramatic promise for the future. As a matter of fact, the past 14 weeks have given me more confidence in my belief that the peaceful methods of diplomacy can eventually take the place of war than anything I have witnessed since the last war drew to a close. This confidence is based on the fact that limitation of arms gives us an affirmative plan for promoting good relations. Merely negative opposition to war is not sufficient.

"Progress in civilization comes only from the affirmative cultivation of habits of good will."

Hatching Out Kellogg Pact.

Nearly two years ago the nations of the world met together at Paris and signed a document containing a good resolution of epoch-making importance. That was the so-called Kellogg-Briand pact, in which the nations renounced war as an instrument of national policy and agreed in future to solve their controversies only by pacific means. That instrument proposed a new international policy and had behind it a general and overwhelming popular support. But such a proposal cannot be made and then left alone to rot. New eras do not come out of old conditions merely by a new edict or a good resolution. In order to reach a condition when no na-

SENATE VOTES TO REPEAL NATIONAL ORIGINS PROVISION

Adopts, 39 to 34, Amendment to Immigration Act Which Hoover Asked for a Year Ago.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Senate today voted to repeal the national origins basis for restriction of immigration which went into effect last July 1.

An amendment by Senator Norbeck (Rep., South Dakota, to the Harris immigration bill providing for repeal of the national origins provision and further restricting immigration, was approved by a vote of 39 to 34. President Hoover recommended the repeal of the national origins provision a year ago, but Congress then refused to act upon it.

A motion by Glass (Dem., Virginia, to recommit the Harris bill with the newly added national origins repeal clause, was defeated, 38 to 34.

A substitute for the Harris measure, offered by Senator Bingham (Rep., Connecticut, and placing only Mexico of the 19 pan-American countries under the quota law, was rejected, 55 to 11.

An amendment by Black (Dem., Alabama, to bar all immigration for three years, beginning next Jan. 1, also was defeated. The vote was 37 to 32.

The bill by Senator Harris (Dem., Georgia, proposing to apply quota restrictions to immigrants from Central and South America, must still be approved by the Senate and acted upon by the House.

Under the Norbeck amendment, annual immigration from Europe would be reduced from 150,000 to 120,000, but the old quota basis allowing Germany and the Scandinavian countries a larger percentage of the quotas would be restored.

COUZENS WILLING TO ACCEPT AMENDMENT TO RAIL BILL

Hawes Clashes With Author of Act Over Great Northern-Northern Pacific Consolidation.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Chairman Couzens of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee indicated today that he would be willing to accept an amendment to his resolution proposing to halt all railroad consolidations which would exempt unifications held not to conflict with anti-trust laws. Previously Chairman McNamara of the Interstate Commerce Commission had approved the amendment. Ten of the 11 Interstate Commerce Commission members had previously expressed the opinion to the committee that they thought the Couzens resolution too sweeping.

Senators Couzens and Hawes (Dem., Missouri, clashed over the proposed merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads. Hawes objected to stopping "all consolidation, good and bad."

Couzens' intention was to have been opposition to other mergers. He said objection had been raised to merging of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Reading and to union of the Lackawanna and Erie.

Couzens said he introduced the resolution to help in matters "such as the O'Fallon Farrell case, holding companies and others in which the Commission itself is at sea."

$200,000,000 IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM OF U. S. STEEL

Myron C. Taylor Announced Plan; Says Business is Basically Sound.

By the Associated Press.

HOBOKEN, N. J., April 21.—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation, informed the stockholders at their annual meeting today that the company had appropriated $200,000,000 for plant improvement and extension this year. He said the business situation is basically sound "and we can face the future with a feeling of assurance."

James A. Farrell, president, reported operation at an average rate of 82 per cent capacity during the first quarter.

Holdings of stock of the directors and the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation showed that George T. Baker held the largest number of common shares, 90,000.

George F. Baker Jr. reduced his holdings to 17,421. Taylor held 32,526 shares. Farrell held 45,500 shares of preferred, unchanged from the previous year, but had added 200 shares to his holdings of common, making 807 shares.

J. P. Morgan, chairman of the board, was reported to still holding in his own name 185 preferred shares and 1261 common shares, as he did last year.

SUPREME COURT WILL DECIDE IF SOVIET FIRM MAY SUE U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Supreme Court today consented to decide whether a Russian corporation has the right to sue the United States.

An appeal was granted the Russian Volunteer Fleet Corporation of Leningrad to recover compensation for contracts for ships requisitioned by the United States in 1917. The Russian corporation had contracts with the Standard Shipbuilding Corporation of New York. The Court of Claims dismissed the suit.

TWO MORE GANDHI LEADERS HELD FOR DEFYING SALT LAW

One the Director of Nationalist Camp at Villeparie—Other an Ex-Member of Legislative Council.

VICEROY RENEWS BENGAL ORDINANCE

Under It, Extraordinary Powers Are Invoked, to Halt Disorders, Such as One at Chittagong.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, India, April 21.—Two leaders in the civil disobedience campaign of Mahatma Gandhi and the all-India National Congress were arrested yesterday for violations of the salt act.

They were Sadhu Swami Anand, who recently took charge of the civil disobedience camp at Villeparie, near Bombay, in succession to Jannalal Najai, also arrested, and Sk. M. Munshi, who recently resigned his seat in the legislative council to join the civil disobedience movement.

The Government took special measures to combat the widespread unrest and tension in Bengal growing out of the raid Friday night and Saturday morning on the police arsenal at Chittagong, on the east bank of the Meghna Estuary. Six police were killed in the raid.

Viceroy's Statement.

Viceroy Lord Irwin at Simla, summer capital, renewed the special Bengal ordinance conferring extraordinary powers for the suppression of disorder. The Viceroy's statement said: "In order to forestall further outbreaks or outbreaks (like that at Chittagong) by terrorists elsewhere, the Government of Bengal has, represented that it is essential to renew the powers which so recently lapsed."

Meanwhile Gandhi is remaining in Gujarat, buying himself with a comparatively small district. In an interview at Jalapur Gandhi said he was not sure when he could go to Bombay, his hands being occupied where he was.

Several minor leaders of the civil disobedience campaign were arrested over the week-end in Bombay.

In two weeks of campaigning against the Government salt monopoly as part of the civil disobedience movement, Gandhi, in the opinion of observers with long experience in Indian affairs, has decidedly gained ground for the Nationalist cause.

Gandhi Deplores Disorders.

The disorders at Chittagong were deplored by Gandhi in an interview last night. "The Chittagong news makes me read," he said, "It shows there is a large or small body of men in Bengal who do not believe in non-violence whether as a policy or a creed. If Chittagong is an indication and not an isolated act as I believe the Calcutta and Karachi acts to have been, it will be a serious affair, but, however serious the situation becomes, there can be no suspension of the fight, there can be no returning of our footsteps."

"I observe that the Viceroy answered the Chittagong disturbances by the exercise of his extraordinary powers; that was only

PETLURA FOLLOWERS GET THREE TO TEN YEARS

39 Had Been Convicted of Attempting to Restore Capitalistic Regime in the Ukraine.

By the Associated Press.

KHARKOV, Soviet Russia, April 21.—Sentences totaling 173 years were meted out by the Supreme Court here yesterday to 39 persons charged with attempting to restore the capitalistic regime in Soviet Ukraine.

Prof. Serge Efremov, former president of the Ukrainian Academy of Sciences; former Premier Chekhovsky and former Foreign Minister Nikovaky, both members of the Government set up by Gen. Simon Petlura in 1919, and one other defendant received 10 years each. The remaining defendants were sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from three to eight years. Nine others were liberated on probation and seven others were banished from the Ukraine.

All the defendants recanted during their trials, and expressed repentance for their attempts to re-establish a capitalistic regime. Their change of front was expected to save them from the death penalty.

TOKIO PARLIAMENT OPENS WITH UNEMPLOYMENT A PROBLEM

Business Depression Also to Be Dealt With; $19,000,000 More Required for Budget.

TOKIO, April 21.—The Japanese Parliament opened today for a three weeks' session which is expected to be a lively one.

Criticism by the opposition will concentrate on three main points, namely, the prevailing business depression, unemployment and what is described as the failure of the Government to insist on Japan's primary claims at the naval conference.

The lower house, elected Ikunobu Fujisawa, Speaker and Sojun Koyama, Vice Speaker. Both belong to the Minshito, or Government party.

The formal opening in the presence of the Emperor will take place Wednesday.

The chief problem this session, from the Government's point of view, is to pass supplementary estimates totaling 39,000,000 yen ($19,500,000) which, added to the main working budget already in operation for the fiscal year 1930-31, which began April 1, makes a total budget of 1,600,000,000 yen ($803,000,000), or 75,000,000 yen less than the 1929-30 estimates.

Important projects to be introduced by the cabinet are an increase of 10,000,000 yen in the national grants for elementary education, schemes for unemployment relief, rationalization of industry and encouragement of home industries.

LEFT WING OF BRITISH LABOR IN NEW SOCIALISM PROGRAM

Independents Indorse Parliamentary Stand of So-Called Rebels, Opposing New Curbs.

BIRMINGHAM, England, April 21.—The Left Wingers of the British Labor party, as a distinct entity, will work for "socialism in our time." By large majorities the independent labor party conference, meeting here yesterday, indorsed the parliamentary stand of labor's so-called rebels—the Maxton group.

James Maxton, fiery Glasgow member, was re-elected president of the party by acclamation. In a statement issued by Maxton, on behalf of the National Council, it was laid down that while the Independent Labor party desires to continue to work wholeheartedly with the Labor party for the labor movement last the socialist cause, "it cannot accept new limitations of its rights and of obligations of members of Parliament to their constituents and to socialism."

This statement widened the gap between the Left Wingers and the main parliamentary labor party, led by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

HOOVER IN FIRST VETO BARS COINS FOR CELEBRATIONS

Rejecting Bill for Gadsden Purchase Half Dollars, He Says Practice Increases Counterfeiting Danger.

'MENACE PRINCIPLES OF COINAGE SYSTEM'

Citing Fact That 5 Similar Measures Are Pending, President Asserts Special Issues Create Confusion.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—In his first formal veto, President Hoover today returned to the House the bill for coinage of a Gadsden Purchase anniversary half-dollar with word that the monetary system of the country is not to be used for such purposes.

Noting that in the last 10 years 15 such coins were issued, Mr. Hoover said elements of confusion and lack of uniformity had resulted with a consequent increase in the danger of counterfeiting.

The text of his message, which was read to the House, follows: "Herewith is returned, without approval, H. R. 2028, 'an act to authorize the coinage of silver 50-cent pieces in commemoration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Gadsden Purchase.'

"This bill provides that in commemoration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the acquisition by the United States of the territory known as the Gadsden Purchase, there shall be coined in the mints of the United States 50-cent pieces to the number of 10,000, to be of a design fixed by the director of the mint and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. The coins are to be legal tender and are to be issued only upon the request of the Gadsden Purchase Coin Committee in such members and such times as they shall request."

Coinage Principles Jeopardized.

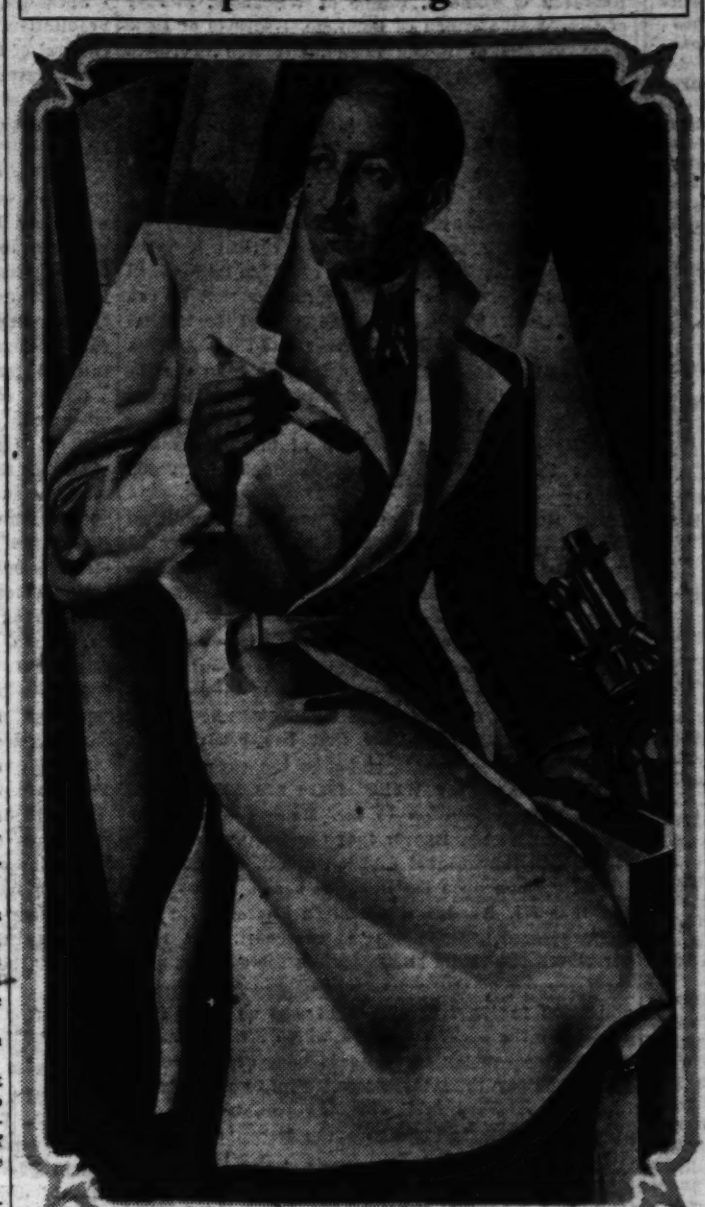

"The matter is not perhaps one of large importance in itself, were it not for the fact of the great number of other similar proposals by the aggregate of which the principles of sound coinage are being jeopardized. Moreover, the multiplicity of these demands have largely destroyed their interest and value for the purposes intended."

"During the past 10 years 15 such special coins have been issued, an average of one each eight months, an aggregate of over 13,000,000 such coins having been authorized. There are now pending before Congress five other bills for such coinage, and before the Treasury Department several requests for support to proposals of the same character."

"The monetary system of the country is created and exists for certain well-defined and essential purposes. Sound practice demands that it should not be diverted to other uses, if we are best to serve the needs of trade and commerce, satisfy the convenience of the people and protect the integrity of the monetary system."

Modernistic Portrait Most Popular in Carnegie Exhibit

Tamara de Lempicka's modernistic portrait of the dashing young Doctor B. received more than twice as many votes as any other picture in the poll to determine the most popular among the 253 paintings shown during the showings at City Art Museum which ended today.

That the Polish woman's work found considerable favor with St. Louis art followers is indicated in their support of the two other pictures which completed her contribution to the exhibition. "Kiss on the Balcony," said to be a portrait of her daughter, and "Dreaming" were among the first 25 in the voting. No other artist ranked so high in the esteem of St. Louisans.

Her portrait of Doctor B., executed in soft shades of tan and gray, shows him in his laboratory. He is wearing a belted top coat and holds a test tube in one hand while his other rests on a microscope. The picture has been described as an example of modern classicism. The figure is clear cut and decisive before a cubistic background.

The second choice of St. Louisans was "The Son," by Jean-Pierre Laurens, professor of painting at the Paris School of Fine Arts. It is a portrait of a mother holding a small boy. The English artist, Howard Somerville, ranked next with a portrait of Miss Elisabeth Elsie Landi. Out of a total of 568 votes the portrait of Doctor B. received 90, the Laurens picture 38 and Somerville's 31.

In the popular vote at Pittsburgh, where the exhibition was shown last fall, the Laurens picture ranked first, Somerville's "In the Studio," second, and the "Portrait of Doctor B." third.

Meyric R. Rogers, director of the Museum, said the vote of St. Louisans indicates that they appreciate modern qualities in art but insist on good technique and workmanship. None of the very radical pictures in the exhibition found public favor, he pointed out.

The picture which won first place in the poll was "The Son," by Jean-Pierre Laurens.

CONFEREES VOTE TO AMEND TARIFF ON LITERATURE

Committee Defers Action on Flexible Provisions and Other Administrative Clauses.

DEMOCRATS READY TO ATTACK MEASURE

Senator Walsh (Mont.) and Congressman Garner Say It Discriminates Against Farmers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Deferring action on the Senate export debenture, and flexible provisions and other major controversial provisions over the administrative clauses of the tariff bill, the Congressional conferees on the measure today agreed on the Senate amendment liberalizing restrictions on importations of literature.

Under the literature provision, customs officials would be authorized as at present, to seize questionable foreign books at ports of entry, but final judgment would rest with the Federal Courts.

The Secretary of the Treasury also would be authorized to admit "so called classics or books of recognized and established literary or scientific merit, but may, in his discretion, admit such classics or books only when imported for non-commercial purposes."

The literature prohibition also would apply to matter urging treason or forcible resistance to any American law and printed matter containing a threat against the life of any American citizen.

The Senate amendment to place a consumers' counsel in the Tariff Commission with power to participate and initiate proceedings for rate changes, was eliminated from the tariff bill today by the conferees.

Export Debenture.

The export debenture and new flexible provisions went over after brief discussion in accordance with the understanding that the Senate conferees come back to the Senate for instructions in event of a disagreement.

Another provision on which the conferees could not agree was the Senate amendment barring after Jan. 1, 1932, goods produced abroad by forced or indentured labor. Convicted-made articles already are denied entry.

The conferees approved the Senate amendments authorizing Porto Rico to impose duties on coffee imported into the island and reducing from five to three years the time in which exporters may get a duty drawback on shipments to the Philippines of goods imported and processed in the United States.

Approval also was given the Senate provision authorizing the United States to enter into reciprocal agreements with foreign countries looking to free entry of advertising matter sent through the mails to individual addresses. An exception, however, would be made of foreign-produced printed matter.

1018 LOCUST ST.

Dear Madam:

Does your husband show as much taste in the selection of his clothes as you do?

You know that there is a color, a cut, a material and a style which is perfectly adapted to him.

Executives have little time to give to careful selection of dress. That is where we come into the picture.

30 years ago we started a custom-tailoring business. 30 years of studying men has (so our customers say) made us able to select the material, cut and color that will make a man look best. Suggest to your husband that he let us make his clothes.

Cordially,

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

WORD SHADOWS OF THE GREAT. By Thomas F. Madigan. (Frederick A. Stokes & Co., N. Y. 15.)

For the collector's world, for near a quarter of a century, Madigan has meant rare autographs. There are, of course, other experts in these fields, but Madigan is the names most common in connection with these books. Mr. Rosenbach published an account of his adventures in Philadelphia—"Books and Bids"—a year ago; and it is a work of art in the field of collecting, even in the "minor" condition. Now we have Thomas F. Madigan's adventures in the neighboring realm of autographs—a work deserving a place in the collection of the collector.

It is not necessary to have been a collector of autographs to appreciate the value of these books. The only requirement is a genuine interest in the great thinkers, dreamers and doers of the world. Unique in the field of autographs, these books are a collection of many rare volumes and rare autographs, when they were written or printed, under various circumstances and with what associations, is to produce an intensely romantic narrative out of the scattered fragments of fact.

What Thomas F. Madigan has done in "Word Shadows of the Great" is to produce a richly illustrated volume with facsimiles of rare manuscripts and letters.

EXTRACTS AT LARGE. By Charles Beadle. (Macaulay.)

Numbers of Americans visiting Europe or trying to become artists in the Latin Quarter there do not acquire themselves in this lurid sketch. The author has perpetrated something grossly libelous. The book is brilliant, as the publisher says, but it is disconnected in plot that one finds it hard to place and follow the characters. Practically everyone is either drunk all the time or getting "stewed," and a murder, several marriages are thrown in for extra color. Of course, there is a plentiful sprinkling of bad French and the phrase "Qu'est ce que vous voulez?"—expressing some sophistication, appears on every page. One character, who calls himself an "artiste," appears to be a sort of reformed Rabelais. Boasting that he is never normal except when drunk, one takes him to be the underdog of the Puritanism and the author's conventionalism. The book is a collection of the dictates of that too so obsolete thing called conscience. We cannot be sure that the book was written in a period of debauch, but some of the similes used by the author hint at such a thing as when on page 30 he speaks of "a short swift silence," and compares it to "a knife cutting a cake." But then, "Qu'est ce que vous voulez?"—H. M. W.

RIGHTS OF FAME. By Walter Glynn. (Scriveners.)

Philadelphia is probably the last of American cities where the ancient idea of an aristocracy of brains and birth still prevails. This novel whose leading characters are drawn from this compact social circle is reminiscent of the old-fashioned tales of high life of the late nineties. One of the daughters of this dominant social group, discarding a childhood sweetheart of her own caste, succumbs to the unconventional wooing of a novelist of talent but of plebeian ancestry. The story is a study in the life of the artist, with this outsider in the rarified atmosphere of Philadelphia society.

THE HEIR. By Roger Burlingame. (Schribner.)

For 300 years the firm of John Van Dyle and Son, first in Belgium, then in the United States, had enjoyed an envied prestige as manufacturing chemists. Family tradition made it the duty of the eldest son in each generation to succeed to leadership in this proud dynasty. The story tells of the twentieth century "heir" to this tradition and this business.

Johnny Van Dyle, an only son, is unfortunately gifted with a temperamental unfitted for the role of an industrial dictator. When after the old man's breakdown, he soon loses control. The firm, still under the family name but incorporated as a company moves on to greater power.

At the story ends, the heir, ousted at 25, is planning to pursue a long deferred ambition to study architecture at the Ecole de Paris.

THE COURTEZAN OLYMPIA. By J. Bulliet. (Covici-Friede, Inc., N. Y.)

Mr. Bulliet, whom some may remember as author of "Apples and Madonnas," is convinced that "sensuality is the main ingredient in all Art" that is worthy of consideration, and he has written this "book of art and desire," as he calls it, in support of his thesis. The volume is handsomely manufactured and contains many reproductions of paintings.

EARLY AMERICAN PRINTS. By Carl W. Drepperd. (Century Co. 54.)

In many an attic there must be rare old American prints whose owners are unaware of the treasures they possess—prints that were of no special value when first bought but are now much sought after by collectors. Anyone possessing old prints, or knowing where such may be found, might find it a paying proposition to procure a copy of the book here listed. Mr. Drepperd, the author, has specialized for many years in antiques generally, with special interest in prints, and he has written the history of American engravings from about 1630 to the Civil War. The various methods of making prints are described, famous print-makers are discussed and lists of their representative productions are given. The volume is profusely illustrated with reproductions of rare and valuable American prints of all periods.

The Week's New Films

By M. W. CHILDS.

BECAUSE OF BUSTER KEATON. The picture at Loew's "Freaky and Easy" is very funny. The lad with the solemn face comes to Hollywood as the manager for "Miss Gopher City, Kan., who is Miss Page. It is Buster who breaks into the movies instead of "Miss Gopher City." But the doesn't happen until he has turned the dispositions of several of his best directors and broken up a half dozen sets with his incomparable stupidity. A half very amusing situations result when Buster intrudes on the solemnities of the sound studios. The plot is faintly reminiscent of "Merton of the Movies," which, by the way, should make a very good picture. If it weren't for Keaton, of course, there would be very little to the picture, although Trisie Trisna has an amusing bit as the hard-boiled mother of "Miss Gopher City." But you do get a great deal of Keaton for your money.

Al and Mammy.

AL JOLSON is at the Missouri and a picture called "Mammy" and you scarcely need to be told anything else. Jolson does it the things he's done before. He is a number of songs, including several of his old hits. It all seemed a little thin, perhaps because it is so familiar. Jolson is the end man in Meadows' Minn. a starting troupe that comes to town through the beneficence of a small-town Sheriff who there some money for the company. Even the plot follows rather closely those of previous Jolson pictures. Al is suspected of shooting the best friend with a stage gun that contains real bullets but is cleared in the last hundred feet of film. There is a "Mammy" who is white haired and who makes her son when all the time in the world turns against him. There is one really amusing number in which the minstrel sings "Yes, We Have No Bananas" to the familiar "Donna E Mobile" from Rigoletto.

They Marry Gentlemen.

which is the profound thesis of the film. It is fairly exciting melodrama. George Bancroft is an Italian contractor and a big shot in the gang world. He develops social aspirations and meets Mary Astor, who is one of our best people, with a very high hat husband. She succumbs for the time being to Bancroft's big, rough ways, but decides finally that they could never be happy together. Bancroft arranges to have her small son kidnapped in order that he may get the boy back and thus demonstrate his power and win her love. But something goes wrong with the kidnapping plot and it takes some pretty heavy gun fighting to clear it up. George at last agrees that the lady is right and goes back to his East Side home, nobler and wiser for the experience. At least that is the impression it is intended to convey in the last 10 feet of film. Bancroft's acting as Joe Forgiati lifts the picture above banality. It was made from Zoe Akins' play, "Pardon My Glove."

Good Business.

THERE is movie hokum of the purest rare in the picture, "High Society Blues" at the Fox. A noble mother and father, and their son and daughter from Iowa, who are trying to break into society. The cruel snubs of the idle rich. A French Count who is being forced upon the innocent young daughter of one of our more exclusive Westchester families. Of course, the girl, who is Janet Gaynor, falls in love with the boy from Iowa, who is Charles Farrell, and they sing to each other quite a bit, to the accompaniment of a ukulele. This all works out so beautifully in the end. Even the count is given some consolation, for he wasn't a villainous count at all. And the girl's mother melts at last in the embrace of her fine new Iowa son-in-law. The Fox should do excellent business this week.

A Revival.

"The Vagabond King" is at the Grand Central at popular prices. The picture first showed at the Missouri several weeks ago. Dennis King is the star.

M'GIVENEY, QUICK-CHANGE ARTIST, AT ST. LOUIS THEATRE

Tal Henry and Movie, "Ladies of Leisure," Other Features on Excellent Bill.

Owen McGivney, quick-change artist, who gives a whole playlet all by himself in a remarkable series of lightning changes, is at the St. Louis Theatre this week. He has skeletonized the setting for a sketch, "Bill Sykes," so that the audience actually sees his changes off-stage, adding a new and surprising touch to the now familiar vehicle.

Associated with him, as usual, are the Mandel Brothers, William and Joe, comedy athletes who appear in a separate act of their own, then reappear for a horseplay afterpiece, a take-off of McGivney's performance.

This combination would make any vaudeville bill good. This week's show, however, in addition, includes Tal Henry and his North Carolinians; Nash and Foley, a versatile comedy team, and sixteen Sunshine Girls who dance and drill a la Tiller.

The motion picture is "Ladies of Leisure," a somewhat purified version of David Belasco's stage success, "Ladies of the Evening." Barbara Stanwyck, star of the stage play, "Burlesque," and wife of Frank Fay, has the feminine lead opposite Ralph Graves. The noteworthy cast includes Nance O'Neill, Lowell Sherman and George Fawcett. It's a fine picture of its kind. In fact, it's a fine show all the way through, at the St. Louis this week.

NUMEROUS WEDDING PRESENTS FOR MUSSOLINI'S DAUGHTER

She Will Marry Son of Minister of Communications Next Thursday.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 21.—A veritable fortune in wedding presents is arriving for Miss Edda Mussolini, who will be married Thursday to Galeazzo Ciano, son of the Minister of Communications.

Although it was understood Premier Mussolini had forbidden the cities, communes and provinces to give official presents, this prohibition did not extend to individuals. His personal presents to his daughter is a valuable bedspread of old Venetian lace which required many years to make.

Other presents include an automobile, a huge black pearl from a Russian Princess, a valuable necklace from friends in Milan, a silver service for 48 persons, 80 old silver plates and a number of pieces of antique furniture.

Miss Mussolini, however, intends to begin housekeeping on a small scale. She and her fiancé have taken an apartment near the Via Salaria, which presents the question of where to put all the presents.

ter advertising the sale of articles of American make.

Another Senate provision accepted would exempt foreign articles from a marketing requirement, if the Secretary of the Treasury is satisfied the marketing could not be made without injury to the article or without making it so expensive as to make its importation prohibitive.

Articles imported by illustrators and photographers for use solely as model in the illustrating of catalogues, pamphlets, or advertising matter would be allowed free entry under bond, if held in this country only six months.

All sections relating to the organization of the tariff commission and valuation bases for the assessment of ad valorem duties were passed over.

Democratic spokesmen are anticipating a spirited debate which the conference report on the tariff bill is expected to arouse with denunciations of the rates agreed on by the conferees.

In statements issued for publication today, Senator Wheeler of Montana, and Congressman Garner of Texas, party leader in the House, asserted the Conference Committee was ignoring the farmer and placing the highest possible duty on industrial commodities.

"Tariff Bill Objectionable." "In addition, Wheeler said that 'objectionable as this tariff bill is it does not meet with the disapproval of President Hoover.' The Chief Executive, he added, 'must have known in advance of its writing that the Republican leadership in Congress would put up to him exactly the kind of bill to be reported by the Conference Committee.'

Walsh added that the Republican conferees had 'compelled acceptance of House rates wherever they happened to be higher than the rates proposed in the Senate bill and wherever the Senate rates were higher than the House rates they were substituted for the latter.'

Garner, one of the conferees, said: "Agriculture as usual has been ignored by the tariff manipulators, who in a few days have undone the work accomplished by the Senate coalition on behalf of the farmers and consumers."

He termed the industrial rates accepted by the conference "intolerable" and asserted that instead of the limited revision recommended by President Hoover the "representatives of industry were forcing" a general revision through Congress.

"A check by the Tariff Commission experts," he added, "shows that in at least three of the schedules, all textiles, the average of rates approved by the conference is actually higher than the average for the same schedules in either the House or Senate bill. The explanation for this is that the conferees accepted only the highest rates of both bills."

Garner said only one item in the wool schedule was reduced below the existing law and that was Oriental rugs, while rugs within reach of persons of moderate means were increased in duty from $4.70 to 40.60 per cent.

Charges Discrimination. "In practically every instance in which it was necessary to fix a compensatory duty," he added, "which is presumed to cover in the manufactured article the duty placed on the raw material, there has been rank discrimination against agriculture."

"This has been most marked in the rates placed on leather goods, shoes and wool manufactures. Hides were given a rate of 10 per cent, but the rates on leather and shoes would justify 20 to 25 per cent on hides."

Instead of a limited revision to place agriculture on a parity with industry, Garner said, the "representatives of industry are forcing through Congress a general revision carrying industrial rates that are indefensible."

to be expected. So long as the British people are determined to impose their rule upon an unwilling people, so long must their rule be in reality without law. The civil disobedience volunteers if true to their creed must either come out victorious or be ground to atoms between two millstones."

Strong denunciation of the "Gandhi movement" was made by Maulvi Mohamed Yakub, deputy president of the Legislative Assembly, speaking at the all-India Muslim conference.

He said the civil disobedience movement was intended to establish the domination of the majority over the minorities of India, and that the Mahatma apparently had the idea that independence was obtainable without the co-operation of the Muslims.

"Under these circumstances," he declared, "we cannot consistently with our self respect join in or sympathize with the lawless movement which recently came to birth in Bombay presidency."

1000 Rifles Seized in Raid on Police Arsenal.

By the Associated Press. CALCUTTA, April 21.—Authorities today feared tension prevailing throughout Bengal Province portended serious developments. There were arrests of civil disobedience campaign leaders all over the province as a preventive measure.

Police and soldiers searched the hills near Chittagong for the 60 or 100 insurgents who Friday night attacked the police arsenal and other public buildings there and killed six of the police defenders. Five arrests have been made.

One thousand rifles, 20 revolvers and 55 muskets were missing from the police arsenal after the raid.

our coins. Experience has demonstrated that the necessities and convenience of the people can best be served and the integrity of our coinage can only be protected from counterfeiting by limiting the number of designs with which in the course of time the public can become thoroughly familiar. Indeed, the Congress itself has recognized the soundness of this principle by providing that no change in the design or die of any coin shall be made oftener than once in 25 years from and including the year of the first adoption of the design, model, die or hub from the same coin."

Counterfeiting Danger Increased. "The growing practice of issuing commemorative coins, incidentally to be sold at a profit and provide funds for projects or celebrations, appears to me to run counter to this principle and by their multiplicity have become a misuse of our coinage system. These coins do not serve for circulating mediums which is the real function of coins. They introduce an element of confusion and lack of uniform-

ty. The danger of counterfeit coins being successfully passed is unquestionably increased by a multiplicity of designs, with which the public cannot become thoroughly familiar. Furthermore, the very premiums at which these coins are sold stimulate counterfeiting of them.

"There are a great many historical events which it is not only highly proper but desirable to commemorate in a suitable way, but the longer use of our coins for this purpose is unsuitable and unwise. This would seem to be clear from the very number of events to be commemorated, and past experience indicates how difficult it is to draw the line and how such a practice, once it is recognized, tends constantly to grow. If this bill is to become law, it is not apparent on what grounds similar measures, no matter how numerous, may be rejected. Yet their enactment in such numbers must bring further confusion to our monetary system. The Government would be glad to assist such celebrations in the creation of appropriate medals which do not have coinage functions."

ENVOY IN ST. LOUIS

By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer
ORESTES FERRARA.

country would import the propo-tion of necessities that it does not produce sufficiently under terms that would not interfere with its domestic production or price scale, Ferrara explained, while breakfasting at Hotel Jefferson. He was welcomed formally by Mayor Miller at the City Hall in the forenoon and will speak at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon at the hotel tomorrow on "Inter-American Friendship and Commerce."

Cites Example of Sugar.
Taking the sugar situation as a practical example of the problems the mutual trade arrangement would solve, the Cuban Ambassador proposed that the first 2,000-000 tons of Cuban sugar—which approximates the annual exportation to the United States—be admitted free. The present tariff, he said, is 120 per cent ad valorem.

"The United States consumes about 6,000,000 tons of sugar a year, importing half of it from Cuba," Ferrara said, "and under the proposed agreement only enough Cuban sugar would be admitted without duty to the point where it might interfere with domestic trade. After the first 2-000,000 tons, using that amount purely as an example covering the present situation, sugar would be subject to the tariff."

"The whole idea is to arrange a scale of trade exchange so as to avoid competition between the countries and work for the best interests of the consumers in each country."

Cuba, on its side, Ferrara pointed out, would admit American products not manufactured in that country duty free. This concession would amount to two-thirds or three-fourths of all of Cuba's imports, he said.

"Cuba produces raw materials required by the United States," Ferrara asserted, "and the United States manufactures articles necessary to Cuba. The countries might well get together and perfect a mutual exchange, without hampering the internal business of either. The only objection I can see to a customs house union would be that of the revenues of the treasuries would be lessened but I can say that Cuba, on its part, would be willing to become a party to such an agreement, provided the other countries involved would participate."

Part of St. Louis.
Ferrara, who addressed the Southwest Foreign Trade Conference at Houston last week, said he was interested especially in his visit to St. Louis because it is an integral factor in the promotion of the trade of the Southwest territory with Cuba.

Development of water and rail facilities at New Orleans, he said, already has increased exports to Cuba through that port until they are two-thirds as much as those passing through New York. He thinks it possible that trade from this section to Cuba may make the exports from New Orleans exceed those of any port in the United States.

Ferrara, who has flown with Col. Lindbergh and participated in several of the most important celebrations in his honor, including the dinner in New York
when he received the $25,000 award for his trans-Atlantic flight, was enthusiastic because of the Colonel's latest achievement in lowering the trans-continental flying time. He said that Lindbergh's contributions towards promoting good feeling between the United States and Latin-America have been "ineffable."

"Fifth Best Customer."
After his welcome at the City Hall, the Ambassador was a guest of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce at the Missouri Athletic Association. He outlined his conception of a partial economic union between Cuba and the United States and officially assured his audience that Cuba will accept any proposals of the United States tending towards reciprocal trade relationships.

Although Cuba is only about the size of Pennsylvania, its Ambassador pointed out that it is the fifth best customer this country has in the world and "your first customer in Latin America." Ferrara expressed the hope that the United States will take steps to insure now the trade of the island, which is being sought already by European nations, and to increase the mass production of its factories to meet the needs of an expanding field of trade in the immediate vicinity.

The Cuban Ambassador was made an honorary member of the St.
Louis Chamber of Commerce, the second such membership ever awarded. The first was to Gen.
Pershing. He also received a replica of the Lindbergh medal, a membership in the athletic association, and an engraved welcome to the city.

This afternoon will be occupied by a sightseeing trip and tonight Ferrara will address a dinner of the Spanish-American War Veterans at the Elks' Club, arranged by A. G. Abreu, the Cuban Consul in St. Louis.

After the Chamber of Commerce luncheon tomorrow, when he will deliver his principal address, the Ambassador will visit the Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field before departing by train for Washington.

RAIN PREVENTS PARADE OF EASTER FASHIONS

4000 Persons Attend the Early Services in Forest Park, However.

Rain, falling through most of the daylight hours of Easter Sunday, prevented any extensive display of spring fashions, and greatly reduced the number of those seen in the parks and on the boulevards, both morning and afternoon.

The sunrise Easter service in Forest Park, near Lindell entrance, was held in spite of the light rain then falling. Attendance was estimated by the Rev. Dr. Edward S.
Travers, Dean of the Episcopal Church, in charge of the service, as about 4000, or less than one-half of last year's number. The Rev. Dr.
Arthur H. Armstrong of the Church Federation preached a brief sermon. An early service in Tower Grove Park, planned by the St.
Louis Christian Endeavor Union, was held instead in Alhambra Grotto, which was filled. The Rev.
Dr. William Crowe of Westminster Presbyterian Church preached.

Most of the churches had large congregations. Floral decorations in many places of worship were elaborate, but costume displays showed the restraining effect of the prevailing dampness. Many left their spring gowns at home and wore raincoats over their winter best.

The largest of indoor congregations was that at St. Louis Cathedral, where Archbishop Glennon celebrated mass and gave a brief Easter message, the sermon being delivered by the Rev. Nicholas Brinkman. At Christ Church Cathedral, Dean William Scarlett, bishop coadjutor-elect, preached to a large congregation.

1300 Easter Visitors at Shaw's Garden.

Despite the rainy weather, 1300 persons, a total of 4356 for the week, visited Shaw's Garden, where calceolarias and the extraordinary Martha Washington geraniums were tastefully displayed in a formal garden for Easter.

The exhibition will continue in the Floral Display House until next Sunday and, if the weather is cool, another week. One remarkable exhibit is a single ger-anium on which seven Martha Washington varieties have been grafted. The flowers resemble the azaleas in variety and brightness of color.

Wrong Man Kidnaped,
By the Associated Press.

GREAT HEND, Kan., April 21.
—Eugene Ewalt, 52 years old, was back home yesterday, telling of being kidnaped and held in a cave
"somewhere north of Larned" more than 24 hours. He was liberated Saturday night by his abductors, who later told him, he said, that he was "not the right man." Night watchman for a creamery, Ewalt said he was kidnaped by three men who threw a sack over his head and drove him to the cavern in an automobile.

PRESIDENT HOOVER GOES ALONE TO QUAKER EASTER SERVICES

His Wife, Suffering From Injured Back, Remains in Her Room.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 21.—President Hoover attended Easter services yesterday at the Irving Street Friends' Meeting House. Mrs.
Hoover, who painfully wrenched her back a week ago, remained in her room.

The Quaker services opened with a period of silent meditation. After a prayer by Dr. Augustus T.
Murray and another period of meditation, a woman minister among the seven with the pastor on the platform, spoke. There was another period of meditation, then Dr. Murray told simply the story of the resurrection.

The congregation, filling every available seat, including an anteroom at the side and two rows of chairs back of the seven rows of pews comprising the center section, sang one hymn to piano accompaniment. There was no chorus.

complete freedom from smoke and soot, no fumes.

Nearly a million Home-makers in the country have found electric cookery to be an efficient, clean, safe and economical method of cooking.

It is inexpensive. In a national test of 300,000 homes the average monthly use of electricity for cooking was found to be 130 kilowatt hours.
In the average St. Louis and St. Louis County would cost $3.25.

ment screws into place like a light bulb and is as easily replaced—at a nominal cost.

Both the element and reflector are easily and quickly removed for cleaning. They may be placed under the faucet or right into the dish pan if you wish.

The spacious one-piece oven has no crannies or "pockets" to become clogged with dirt. The mirror-like chromium-plated walls retain their original polish when simply wiped with a damp cloth.

The Electrochef is Guaranteed for One Year by the Manufacturer and by Union Electric. Its efficiency is high and its performance has passed the most exacting laboratory tests. Finished in glistening porcelain enamel with chromium plate metal parts...its beauty of line is in keeping

GRANGER, Ia., April 21.—James O'Mealy, 35 years old, of St. Joseph, Mo., was trampled to death by a herd of horses here yesterday when a circus was breaking camp to start the summer season. O'Mealy, an employee of the show, fell from his horse.

Doctor's PRESCRIPTION when system is sluggish; costs nothing to try

When your bowels need help, the mildest thing that will do the work is always the sensible choice. Take a laxative that a family doctor has used for all sorts of cases of recurring constipation. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is so pleasant to the taste, so gentle in its action, it is given children of tender age and yet it is just as thorough and effective as stronger preparations. Pure senna, and harmless laxative herbs; ingredients that start a gentle muscular action. Avoid a coated tongue, laden breath, bilious headaches, etc. Every drug store has Dr. Caldwell's famous prescription in big bottles. Or just write Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, Monticello, Ill., for a free trial bottle.

BUILDING PLANS IN 3 MONTHS SET 5-YEAR RECORD

Contracts for First Quarter of 1930 Total $303,000,000; Gain of 55 Pct Over Same Period in 1929.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 21.—Construction contracts totaling more than $303,000,000, awarded during the first three months of the year were interpreted by administration officials today as reflecting the appeal of President Hoover for increased building as a means of business stabilization.

The secretary said the report, which came from 37 states, indicated his $7,000,000,000 estimate of construction for the year would be fulfilled. The $7,000,000,000 program was estimated on reports of the Government, Governors and executives of public utility corporations. It would carry the year far ahead of last year.

The total was announced by Secretary Lamont of the Commerce Department with a statement that it was the highest for that period in five years and an increase of 55 per cent over the first quarter of 1929. Contracts for public buildings totaled $32,337,000, as compared with $24,318,000 in the corresponding period of last year. Lighting systems awarded contracts aggregating $20,455,000 as against $5,854,000 in the first quarter of 1929, an increase of 249 per cent.

An increase of 128 per cent was noted in railroad construction, the figures being $70,648,000 for the first three months of this year and $30,973,000 for the same period of last year. Contracts for hospital and institutional construction moved upward from $22,588,000 last year to $39,364,000 this year.

Contracts for park development gained 127 per cent, water-front development 73 per cent, water supply systems 70 per cent, incinerators 60 per cent and bridges 47 per cent.

Decreases of 55 per cent in the construction of railways buildings, 28 per cent in park buildings, 14 per cent in sewerage systems and 3 per cent in educational buildings were reported. Residential buildings lagged behind last year by 48 per cent, commercial buildings were 15 per cent off and industrial buildings 17 per cent less than a year ago.

An increase in automobile production during March to 401,371 vehicles as compared with 324,371 in the preceding month, but a decrease from the 585,455 total of the corresponding month of last year was reported by the Department of Commerce.

Passenger cars comprised 335,789 of the total output, truck 64,200 and taxicabs 1389.

Federal Reserve Bank Explains Causes of Lower Interest Rates.
WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Federal Reserve Bank bulletin for April, issued today, said lowering interest rates in all the principal money markets of the United States have furnished the principal matter of interest in the finance field during recent weeks.

A record of the various downward adjustments of the regional banks of the system, by which the tendency has been transferred to all parts of the United States, was given in the statement, though the review emphasized that natural economic conditions were chiefly responsible for the development.

"Easier money conditions in the money markets of the United States in recent months have been caused in part by the Federal Reserve policy as expressed in re-discount rates," the review said, "and in open market purchases of securities, and in part by a decrease in the demand for funds since the October-November break in the stock market. There has been a large decrease since that time in demand for loans to finance transactions in securities and the reduced volume of business activity has resulted also in an decrease of demand for commercial loans. Another factor is the decrease in demand for reserve bank credit and consequently the easing tendency in the money market has been the inflow of gold from abroad. There was an increase of $130,000,000 in the country's gold stock during February and March."

SERVICE CAR DRIVER HELD IN DEATH OF 10-YEAR-OLD BOY
Verdict of Criminal Carelessness Returned Against John J. Bresnahan.
John J. Bresnahan, 36 years old, service car driver of 3515 Clark avenue, was held for the grand jury under $5000 bond by a verdict of criminal carelessness returned at a coroner's inquest at Overland today in the death of 10-year-old Ponder McClain, killed Saturday by Bresnahan's automobile.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McClain, 5535 Tennyson avenue, Overland, was attempting to cross Woodson road when he was hit. Witnesses said the service car was speeding and moved about 25 feet after the accident. Bresnahan declared he was driving slowly, but "lost his head" and could not apply the brake immediately.

$4000 TAKEN IN HOLDUP OF 30 MEN IN CHICAGO GARAGE

Six Robbers Compel Chauffeurs to Lie on Floor While One Loots Cashier's Coffer.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, April 21.—A robber's bullet singed Matthew Kurt's mustache and his sense of humor simultaneously early yesterday as six men, armed with shotguns and pistols, held up 30 men in a West Side taxi garage and escaped with $4000 in cash.

Kurt, counting receipts in his cashier's cage, suddenly saw a pistol slipped under the edge of the window.

"Put that gun away and turn in your books before you get fired!" Kurt ordered. He thought it was one of the drivers, joking.

But Kurt became serious when the bullet struck the wall behind his head. He raised his hands as another gunman stepped in and scooped up the week-end receipts while four others forced drivers and mechanics to lie in a heap in a corner.

Even "dyed-in-the-wool" oil engineers get a thrill out of this test . . .

It is a simple experiment, but the dramatic results excite even oil experts.

A quart of "used" Iso-Vis is drained from a car driven many hundreds of miles. It is black with the road dust and dirt that always accumulate in the crankcase.

Five minutes later we have a quart of oil that might have come straight from the refinery. It has the clear amber color. The same heavy body. You could put it in your car and drive half across the continent.

It is exactly the same quart of oil that was just taken from the crankcase!

What has happened?
What has happened in the laboratory is simply that a quart of used Iso-Vis has been put through a special filter which has removed dust and dirt.

What has happened to the oil is that we have finally perfected a lubricant that does not change character in the crankcase—does not "thin out" or break down.

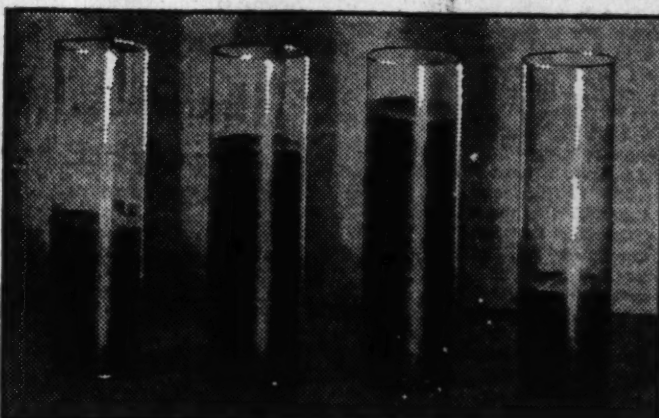

This advance is one of far-reaching importance in operating your car. It means better lubrication from the time you put this new type oil in the crankcase until you drain it off. It means less wear on moving parts and a longer average life for the automobile engine.

New Iso-Vis has other important advantages. It brings a radical reduction of carbon deposit. And it gives lubrication over a wider range of temperatures than any oil we have yet tested.

New Iso-Vis is on sale at all Standard Oil dealers and service stations.

OBSERVING the oil cleaning experiment which proves that New Iso-Vis does not "break down" in the automobile crankcase. The used oil is poured through a special filter. The filter removes the crankcase dirt and the oil itself is exactly the same as when freshly distilled.

THE result of tests for carbon deposit with 4 premium-priced oils. Carbon from New Iso-Vis is shown at extreme right. All 4 oils ran for 50 hours in the same motor under similar conditions.

New ISO-VIS 30's a quart
Motor Oil

The New Polarine is also affected by our new refining process—giving it a degree of lubricating efficiency which we believe is exceeded only by the New Iso-Vis. The price is 25c a quart.

tion will resort to war as an instrument of national policy there must be established a larger measure of confidence than now exists in the ability of the different nations of the world to maintain their pacific intentions under all the temptations and circumstances which are sure to confront them. History shows us only too clearly what will happen if we leave the old conditions unchanged. Affirmative constructive steps must be taken to carry out our good resolution and to begin the evolution in mutual confidence and good will upon which the success of our resolution depends. Otherwise the failure of our good resolutions may produce a condition worse than if they had never been made.

Arms a Gauge of Confidence.
Last spring President Hoover wisely decided that one of the most important of such constructive steps was a move towards naval limitation.

"He realized that if the nations mean the Kellogg pact literally, they must not allow conditions to arise that will jeopardize their promise. The first method to that end is an agreement on limitation of armaments. That is a clear and positive test of a national intention to maintain pacific relations under all circumstances. Such an agreement by its very nature precludes the idea of war as an instrument of national policy. For no nation is likely to agree that its neighbors shall have a navy large enough for such a purpose.

"One of the surest tests, therefore, of the effectiveness of the Kellogg-Briand pact is the progress which is being made in the limitation of armament. Limitation of armament is a barometer or gauge of the development of confidence between nations which will enable them to deal with each other wholly upon an amicable basis. It is for this reason that any experience in the naval conference has given me so much encouragement. This encouragement is not based solely on an appraisal of just how much has been accomplished in the particular treaty which we are signing, but also upon the demonstration which this treaty affords that the process of limitation can be carried further in the future.

One Problem Solved.
The work of the London conference has really comprised two quite separate and distinct problems—the problem of the relations between the navies of the United States, Great Britain and Japan on the one hand, and the problem of the relations between the navies of Great Britain, France and Italy on the other.

"These are quite distinct problems. The first of these has been solved. This is a great achievement in itself and fruitful of great benefit to the general conditions of the world for the future. But it is a far simpler problem than the other because the naval relations of three countries, separated by such great oceans and wide distances as separate Great Britain, the United States and Japan, are necessarily less complex than the naval relations of the great Powers of Europe. The latter are complicated by many conditions from which the former are entirely free. Furthermore America's isolated and advantageous position and the national security which this position affords imposes upon us the duty to lead in the limitation of armaments and to refrain from criticizing others less fortunately placed.

Conciliatory Steps.
"In the second of these problems—the problem of the relations of the navies of Great Britain, France and Italy—valuable discussion, members of the American delegation have been privileged to act as friendly observers, watching the development and clarification of these underlying questions. The discussion has not merely involved a negotiation about the size of navies or the types of ships. It has been a study and debate concerning the political questions which govern the relations of these three nations of Europe to each other.

"Into these political questions it has not been America's business to enter. But sitting on the sidelines it has been quite evident that the result of the conference has been to clarify issues and make their solution in the future more possible. In this way a long step forward has been made towards ultimate limitation by those nations which have not yet agreed on a complete limitation of their navies. This came not only by clarifying the results of their discussion but by the patience and good temper in which those discussions were carried on. This has been a good augury for the prospects of their final success. They are separating now full of determination to grapple with these problems as they now stand revealed and to finally solve them.

Only Two Roads to Travel.
"In summary, the message which I should like to make clear to you all today is that the success of the London naval conference is necessarily related to the success of the Kellogg pact. The good resolutions of that pact cannot stand alone. They must be followed by national effort, prompt, constant, unremitting effort to make them good and no line of effort offers a better earnest of its success than the line of naval disarmament. In selecting that line President Hoover laid his finger upon the best method of insuring that our solemn promise of two years ago should be fulfilled.

"There are but two possible roads to travel. One is the road of competitive armament and this, whether accompanied or unaccompanied by good intentions, will lead to war. The other is the way of limitation with its constant effort to forestall war by creating such confidence and friendliness between nations as will prevent the seeds of war from growing. We have now before us not only a definite objective but a concrete method of going at it. There is something to work on—to get our teeth into. The hard work and constant vigilance which will translate good intentions into practical realities can be accomplished and are being accomplished by naval limitation. This, to me, is the significance and encouragement of the conference we have just been through."

Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, spoke on the complexities of the work of the Associated Press.

President Franklin Work of Press in Conference.

The following greeting from President Hoover was read at the luncheon by Noyes:

"I would appreciate it greatly if you would extend by greetings to the annual meeting of the Associated Press. It is a great institution which daily renders intellectual service to the American people with that fine impartiality and reliability that have given it high distinction."

"It is a marvelous advancement of science that enables you to listen to an address from London by Secretary Stimson. The work of Secretary Stimson and his colleagues at the conference has been carefully and fully transmitted over the wires of the Associated Press day by day for the past four months and thereby the American people have gained an appreciation of the problems which the conference has undertaken to solve and the difficulties they have met and the success that has resulted.

SPRING DIET STYLES ARE INTRIGUING

Green is Always the Popular Color in the Spring Food Catalogues.

There are fashions in diets, just as there are in clothes.

In cold weather we turn to solid, substantial meals, but when spring comes, we begin to yearn for green things, for more flavory foods, and we seek those things in the market places that appeal through their freshness or their novelty.

Then, too, appetites are often capricious, partly because of carelessness in eating in previous weeks or months, and very often the housewife is faced with a very serious problem of planning meals that will stimulate the appetites of the various members of her family.

Spring foods must be wholesome and satisfying, for the needs of the body must be met, but at the same time there is a real need to make these same foods appear especially appealing and dainty.

Fortunately there is a good variety of foods available, and in those places where fresh vegetables and fruits cannot be had readily, there is always sure to be a fair supply and a wide selection of canned goods. We learn that there are some 360 varieties of canned foods to be had nowadays—surely enough for the most discriminating palates.

When the fresh foods are too high in price to be very generally used, they may be served as tempting salads or as garnishes. As the season advances, the prices are sure to become lower and the supply more plentiful. Nevertheless, if possible, use some of the spring foods early, as they certainly have an appetite appeal.

Aside from their appearance, these fresh spring foods have a very definite food value. Not only do they stimulate the appetite by their appearance, but their composition adds a good supply of vitamins and minerals to the diet. In many cases spring diets take the form of a largely increased use of salads, made both from raw and cooked foods.

Fruit juices also, especially when served as beverages, have an added appeal. Nature in her wisdom seems to point out those foods which are especially needed to put one's system into good running order.

In the dessert line, fruit pies and plain sugared fruits, especially strawberries and pineapple, are popular. Of the fruit pies, certainly rhubarb and strawberry hold large places. In fact, in many families the appearance of a rhubarb pie is a sure sign that spring has arrived. There are many kinds of rhubarb pie, but after all, the plain, old fashioned variety cannot be much improved upon. The old-fashioned name for rhubarb is "pie plant."

Rhubarb Pie.
Use the pink stalks if they can be had. Cut off the leaves, wash the stalks, but so long as they are young and tender do not peel them. Cut them in quarter-inch slices and for a medium-sized pie use enough to make four cupsful.

Mix this with one cup of sugar which has in turn been mixed with one-quarter cup of flour. The grated rind of half an orange or lemon may be added.

Line a pie plate with good pastry. This should be rolled about an eighth of an inch thick. Fill with rhubarb and then cover the pan with crisscross strips of pastry rolled a scant one-eighth inch thick and cut in half-inch strips. Leave little spaces between the strips about a quarter of an inch wide.

Put in a hot oven—450 degrees—and bake for 10 minutes. Then reduce the heat to 375 and continue cooking for 30 to 40 minutes longer until the rhubarb is tender and the crust brown.

VEGETABLES FOR GARNISHES
Colorful Fruit or Vegetable Trim-mings Add to a Dish.
The effectiveness of a garnish is largely dependent upon color contrast.

A touch of green is refreshing with meals and fish. Vegetables cut in fancy shapes constitute any number of substitutes over the overworked parsley. Some other suggestions for meat, fish or poultry are asparagus tips, sliced beets, green pepper rings, carrot tops, sliced dill pickles, red cabbage, fried tomatoes, currant jelly, celery curls, cream cheese balls, hard-cooked egg yolk.

Concerning Lamb Shoulder.
The shoulder cuts of lamb are particularly juicy and sweet. They have, however, well developed muscle tissue and in order to bring out every bit of goodness, it is necessary to cook the meat for a long time at a low temperature. The best methods for cooking are roasting, braising or steam roasting.

Use for Mashed Potatoes.
Mashed potatoes also may be used to line the dish for a fish pie, for patties, for potato pudding, potato doughnuts, croquettes, potato smelt and in many other ways. They may be served as mashed potatoes either by reheating in a steamer or by adding a little hot milk or water, and heating briefly while over direct heat.

SMOTHERED BEEF AND ONIONS

Take two pounds onions, one cup boiling water, one teaspoon salt, five tablespoons browned flour, three cups meat stock, two cups diced meat, two tablespoons dripping, four tablespoons minced parsley.
Peel and slice onions thin. Place in kettle; add one cup boiling water and salt; cook gently 20 minutes.

Cream drippings and flour; stir on hot onion water and meat stock. Then stir in meat and onions; simmer uncovered 15 minutes.
Turn onto service platter and sprinkle with chopped parsley; leave.

Creamed Chicken

Melt one tablespoon butter, add one tablespoon flour and blend well. Add one cup milk and stir constantly until smooth and creamy. Add one-half teaspoon salt and one cup diced tender cooked chicken. Reheat over hot water and serve with small pieces of toast.

KITCHENETTE HELPS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Terse Suggestions for Short Cuts Which Simplify House-keeping Duties.

Shot is usually used for removing sediment from decanters, vases, etc. Shot eventually scratches the glass and to prevent this use white potato peelings, cut fine. The peelings should be left in the articles overnight after which they should be washed with warm water.

Spinach should be cooked over steam or in very little water. Underground vegetables should be salted after cooking and top vegetables should be cooked in salted water.

Glass breakage is often due to sudden changes of temperature. A dish which has been used for serving ice cream or a tumbler cooled with ice water will, if set near a fire or dipped in hot water, almost surely crack.

It is always more economical to buy flavoring extracts of established quality. They may cost a little more per bottle, but less is needed to give the desired results, so that they last longer and really improve or add to the flavor of the foods with which they are used.

Potatoes lose about 40 per cent of their food value when pared before boiling or baking instead of afterwards. Scrub potatoes well and put on in boiling water or waterless cooker and cook until they break open. Then remove potatoes and dry in oven. One quick way to finish these potatoes is to peel skins off and brown quickly in hot fat.

An excellent icing for layer or loaf cake can be made by beating together one-half cup cream (evaporated milk can be substituted), one tablespoon of very strong coffee, two tablespoons of peanut butter and one and one-half cups of sifted confectioners' sugar. Stir until thick and spread on cake.

Listing all the items on the menu with an estimate of the amount of time required for the preparation of each one will enable her to decide just what should be attended to first, and guarantee that the entire dinner will be ready at the same time.

One clever manager has solved the problem of devising dinners that can be prepared and then left in oven and icebox until wanted. A combination that has proved particularly popular in her household is baked beans with brown bread sandwiches, tomato jelly salad with sliced alfalfa, pears, blueberry cake or meringue custard pie and coffee.

A few minutes of careful planning will save a great deal of time and many waste motions in the preparation of a meal. Every cook should approach her job as an executive tackles business problems, never rushing into the actual work without adequate preparation.

SOUP IS AN ALL-YEAR-ROUND DISH FOR OLD AND YOUNG
This necessitates a well-stocked supply of various canned soups.

Soup has an all-year-round place in the family food list. Home-made soups will be more appreciated if they are more carefully made.

The cream soups, for instance, that are made from equal parts of cooked vegetables, mashed or rubbed to a pulp, and thin cream sauce must be free from lumps, and must be well seasoned to be tasty.

There is nothing more unappealing than a cream soup that is full of lumps, that is too thick and that is lacking in the seasonings necessary to give it character.

If the soup is very pale in color, garnish it with a little finely chopped parsley, chopped chives, shredded pimiento, a dash of paprika or a spoonful of whipped slightly salted cream that is colored pale green or sprinkled with paprika.

A New and novel dessert

SWEETEN a bowl of Rice Krispies with honey, to taste. Fold in some whipped cream. Then serve. It's a most delicious dessert.

You'll like Rice Krispies for breakfast, lunch or supper. They're so crisp they actually crackle in milk or cream. A wonderful cereal for children. Oven-fresh at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

UNEMPLOYMENT VIEWS OF DUTCH SHELL HEAD

Sir Henri Deterding Thinks "Steady Work the Year Round" Is Unsound.

The idea of "steady-work-the-year-round" as a stabilizer of employment is all right as far as it goes, but it has its limitations, according to Sir Henri Wilhelm August Deterding, chairman of the Board of the Royal Dutch Shell group of oil companies, who is in St. Louis today with Lady Deterding.

Any plan of business concerns to carry employees over periods of depression instead of turning them off in order to retrench is well and good, he said in discussing the announcement that 200 of the largest corporations in the United States are to put in operation a "long-time program for the prevention of unemployment."

The economics of running business enterprises, he pointed out, however, and unfortunately, will not permit the carrying of large numbers of employees for whom there is no use. Such a situation is as bad for the employee as it is for the employer, he said.

Dedicates $2,000,000 Building. Sitting in the office of U. de-Burgh Daly, president of the Shell Oil Corporation, whose guest Sir Henri is, he talked to reporters on a variety of subjects. Oil ran freely through his remarks, for he had just come from San Francisco where he dedicated the new $2,000,000 Shell Oil Co. building, the purpose for which he made this visit to the United States.

Problems occasioned by over-production of oil, which he estimated on a world wide basis as amounting to about 7 per cent, will find many of their solutions in increased uses for oil, he said.

"The barrel of oil is a Pandora's box in a new shape," was the way he put it.

"We are still concentrating too much on gasoline," he explained. "Oil contains many more products, many which we don't know about. The next few years will show what I mean. Getting out the other things won't mean less gasoline either—they will be extra."

How to Have World Peace. He said he did not mean to disparage diplomatic efforts at world peace, but that in his opinion nothing would do more for international concord than a wide scattering of capital. The more foreign money in the United States and the more American money invested abroad, the better it will be, is his view. "You are not going to vote for war with a country which has industries and interests in which you own a share," he explained. "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also," he quoted.

Head of one of the world's largest combines, Sir Henri is at the same time a great believer in individualism. "Individuals—men like Rockefeller, Hill, Harriman, Edison, Ford, Gary and Carnegie—they are the men who have made the United States," he said. The Russian attempt to do what he called "mechanize life" is basically unsound, in his view.

Sir Henri has made two previous visits to St. Louis, the last one in 1923. He and Lady Deterding will leave for New York tonight after a visit to the Shell refinery in Wood River. They will sail for London Friday.

Although born in Holland 65 years ago and still a Dutch subject, Sir Henri has lived for many years in England and 10 years ago was knighted. He began as a clerk in the Dutch Bank of Java but didn't do so well and was donated as an assistant to the manager of the Dutch Oil Co. In that office he was more apt.

THE WAY OF A WOMAN

By Marguerite M. Marshall.

CHILDREN FIRST

NEW styles in motherhood are almost as much discussed, when women get together these days, as new styles in skirts. Even the mother who—like her mother before her—takes all the physical care of her children and enjoys it (most of the time, anyhow) is "new" in many ways.

She watches diet and discipline with an eagle eye. She has read, if she doesn't always believe, the new theories of juvenile behavior and training. She may chuckle over the psychological tests for the perfect child, put forward by childless educators. She may snort at Dr. John Watson's frankly expressed belief that a baby should never be brought up by its own mother. But she is of her age sufficiently not to allow her 4-year-old to develop a mother-fixation.

Though, in the phrase of older mothers, she may "worship her children," she has the new wisdom not to let them know it.

Another new-style parent is the part-time mother, whose mothering is arranged on a modern time schedule. She parks her baby—perhaps when it is as young as six months—at a nursery school, and divides her own life between hours with the baby and hours at some sort of paid work.

Again, there is the mother who has divorced her child's father and who—for the most part honestly—is trying to work out a scheme of life in which the child will not suffer deprivation and maladjustment.

Motherhood, for many modern women, is not the straight, one-track road it used to be.

YET there are no rules which still apply universally to mothering? One, we think, remains unchanged: children must come first. They do not ask to be born. If a woman—no matter how she came to have them—takes the responsibility of bringing them into the world, they have to be the center, the stubborn fact, in the parental scheme of things, as long as the children remain children. To their welfare mother and father must make their own adjustments conform. The ultimate test of any such adjustment is surely, "Is it well with the child?"

What sets us scribbling today about modern mothers are two autobiographical confessions from them in the current magazines. Frances Frisbie O'Donnell writes a defense of herself and other part-time mothers in the Forum. An anonymous divorcee describes in the Nation, the effects upon her son of the separation of his parents.

Mrs. O'Donnell argues that the happiest mother, doing work which she enjoys, makes the best mother.

"For 10 years," she says, "I tried to do what has been traditionally expected of a dutiful mother. In the midst of housekeeping I tried to keep myself patient and helpful toward my family. But some how things did not run smoothly."

"So she put her household in trained hands and took another job for herself."

"My children," she insists, "would be no better off if I washed every dish they eat on, waxed the floors they walk on, or if I continuously superintended these tasks."

"... Did my children love me any less after the organization of our life was changed? Because I had spent my day writing at a desk instead of scrubbing pans at a sink, did they come to me any less eagerly at evening to whisper their secrets? Did they feel that I was no longer interested in them because I no longer cleaned their spinach? Not at all."

She concludes with the perfectly sound warning: "Don't ever allow your baby to tie himself to your apron strings if you want him to grow into an independent, unhampered individual." And she speaks with justifiable scorn of the mother whose heart never broke when her son first went to summer camp, because Ralph had "never even tied his necktie for himself."

If Mrs. O'Donnell's youngsters are healthy, happy, self-reliant and well-trained, they are a complete justification of her part-time schedule. The proof of motherhood, as of pudding, is in the results. When children reach school age, many a modern mother finds it possible to combine other work with her work for them.

Yet it seems to us only fair that the children's interests come first. If, for instance, it is better for them to live in the suburbs, that is where the home should be, even though their mother's outside job could be performed more easily were the family domiciled in town.

And if she is able to nurse her babies, ought not all outside work to give way for the time being to the nursing schedule? Medical opinion seems almost unanimous as to the superior health and vitality of the baby fed in this natural fashion. We know of more than one modern young woman who shirked the job and then spent hundreds of dollars and hours of anguished anxiety before she found a way to keep her child from starving to death.

"Hollywood Picture Colony Is Just A Hot-Air Bubble"

CHAPTER XVII.

EARLY in 1925, after "Cobra" was finished, Rudy and I went again to Palm Springs in the Mojave desert to be the guests of our dear friend, Dr. White, for a short vacation between pictures. Rudy was sorely in need of a rest, before he started to make "Black Eagle"—but more than physical relaxation, we both needed a rest from Hollywood.

Life in Hollywood is bad enough under the best conditions, which means when one is plunged in work, absorbed in it so completely that it serves as an anesthetic to make one oblivious to the petty, unhealthy community life of the capital of Filmland. Work is the one thing in the world which makes Hollywood endurable.

And now, thanks to Rudy's advisers, I was successfully barred from work. By the terms of his new contract with United Artists, I was no longer his art director. I had no place in his productions; I wasn't even allowed on the set.

With Rudy at the studio 18 hours a day, I could sit at home and fold my hands and look at the bright blue sky.

Stories about Hollywood "home life" should be set down as poppycock—fairly tales, sentimental drivel devised by some clever press agent paid to picture the star he writes of in some sweet domestic scene. There is no such thing as home life, and the further one goes toward stardom the less opportunity there is for it.

Word "Home" Is Joke.

The studio is an exacting mistress. She claims the time of her slave from 6:30 in the morning until midnight—or may be later. One dashes home for a few hours' sleep and then back to the studio again. There is also the matter of location, which is often so far away that the actor is gone for weeks at a time, constantly thrown in proximity with people of uncertain ideals whose heads have been turned by quick success and whose ambitions are purely selfish.

The word "home" in Hollywood is a joke. By the time stardom is reached it is an anachronism.

Activity had always been the mainstay of my existence. Idleness left me stupefied. I had always had some occupation even when I was a girl of 13. Now, to keep myself from going crazy, I hit upon the idea of writing and producing pictures myself, for which Rudy's manager promised to raise funds. Under this plan I could still be working on the same lot with Rudy, and we might save ourselves from drifting even further apart.

Already we had drifted miles from each other. The molehill of petty "henpecking" jibes had suddenly grown to a mountain, an insurmountable barrier between us, to destroy the companionship, trust and sincerity we had so long enjoyed, leaving instead hurt pride and suspicion.

Now, deprived of mutual interest in work, we clung to the one last straw of proximity and daily contact to save us from complete alienation. Besides, to make a picture of my own would save me from the curse of idleness, relieve the sham of "home life" and give me something for which to get up in the morning.

I called it "What Price Beauty" and made it a very light satire on the modern woman in the beauty parlor. But the script as I had written it went over the heads of producers; they missed the point entirely. In an effort to make it into what they called a "sympathetic story," they took out all my satirical titles, the happy satirical ending, and turned it topsy turvy into slush with no point or meaning. In this form, of course, it wouldn't sell, as I was informed with glee by Rudy's advisers who used this as one more proof of my incompetence; another evidence of my selfish ambition, by reason of which I was not content to sit at home in blind wifely devotion and wait for Rudy's towering fame.

And there was another thorn in the flesh. Neither Rudy nor I had ever taken much interest in Hollywood's famous evening parties that were the life of the film colony. After a hard day at the studio we found we were much too tired to listen to a lot more chatter about the everlasting pictures, bickerings, jealousy and gossip.

For this reason Rudy had acquired the reputation of being upstage, and I, of course, was blamed for it. I kept him tied to my apron strings. So now Rudy's business adviser (who had taken it upon himself to become his personal adviser as well as undertaker to see him straight), Rudy was informed that the men in Hollywood were looking down on him because he did not assert his independence. He must go out on these famous soirees, disport himself like a man, dance and flirt with other women, make his wife jealous by having affairs.

So we started to go out oftener; we did the expected thing, we danced, we giggled, we gossiped, we flirted, we drank—and were exceedingly bored. In a grim determination to join in the "fun" we went on "those amusing expeditions" to Venice, the local Coney Island, where we indulged in the thrills of the merry-go-round, the shoot-the-shoots, ate hot dogs and shook everyone else, pretended we were having a hilarious time.

Appearance Is Good.

Hollywood, great realm of hokum! How it would love to be the wicked city it poses to be! But it is not even a wicked city, for wickedness has its realities, even though they are grim, and Hollywood has nothing but sham. Rather, it is a petty Main street, where every wind blows gold dust to blind the eyes and make one see things as they are not.

Hollywood, a continuous struggle of Nobodies trying to be Somebody, all pretending to be what they are not. Extra girls spending their last dollar on their haircuts or on their backs trying to imitate some star they are not. Bit players fighting to be feature players; feature players fighting to be stars—and when they have reached their goal what have they gained? Stars of the past trying to keep up appearances and pretend they are what they once were. Stars of the present pretending in public they are what their fans think them to be; in private, either empty-headed butterflies blindly passing through life or weary, disillusioned fighters clutching at their fast slipping success.

In the technical ranks—jealousy, plagiarism, stealing of ideas, buck-passing, alibi, graft.

Here and there a few sparks from the Divine Fire waiting the will of chance to be fanned into genius or crushed into oblivion.

A pathetic race after vanishing illusion. An over-inflated bubble which, when pricked, leaves nothing but hot air.

Real Actors Despise Place.

This is Hollywood as I knew it five, 10 years ago. Sometimes, in an effort to be fair, I have fancied my opinion might be prejudiced, embittered by the unhappy memories it holds for me, or that Hollywood of the present is a different place. So I have taken pains to ask the opinions of intelligent writers, legitimate actors and stage directors lured to Filmland by the talkies, and recently returned from which surfeited but did not satisfy. Yet the actor is not wholly to blame; with so little to occupy his attention he must have stimulation.

2. To own the largest, most palatial residence in Beverly Hills, which includes the largest swimming pool and the most luxurious accessories considered mere social necessities by the standards of a Cecil de Mille film.

3. To acquire the greatest number of expensive motor cars, built not for use but for display. After cars come yachts and saddle horses. One yacht is not enough; there should be several; and saddle horses are part of the rich man's display. It makes no difference whether or not he knows how to handle them.

Long Dress Parade.

Established in this princely background, one must of course be adequately dressed for every hour of the day. Life is one long dress parade.

The point of everyone's conversation, when not exchanging scandal of the screen, is to prove how much grander he himself is than anyone else in the colony. So, in this fever of acquisition of things and things and things, all save perspective of life is lost and truth is absorbed in sham.

I often used to long for the good old days of barely three years ago when Rudy and I were so poor we had to take early morning rides in our Cadillac—our Cadillac—the funny car built on stilts—and shoot quail and rabbits to procure enough food for ourarder.

Then, at least, we were human beings living in realities, instead of in a pastry cook's palace of sugar, which surfeited but did not satisfy. Then we could do our own thinking without the help of financial aids to tell us how we should live and shape our ideas.

Those were the days when Rudy, undisturbed by success, often said to me:

"I don't like those people they put on the dogs."

For such funny little errors in English "those people" had ridiculed him—and now here we were, both of us, "putting on dogs" as vigorously as anyone!

How strange that all our early hopes and high ambitious strivings should have led us to this mockery! Had we won the fight or lost it? Just as the man who, surfeited with a diet of pastry and sweets, longs for the simple, most meager fare, so I, in my saner moments, longed to escape from this artificial life to the peasant who tills the soil—anywhere among simple, real people where I could cleanse my soul of the sticky, syrupy substances with which we were saturated. Judgment had become so blunted by the Hollywood ideal that neither Rudy nor I could distinguish between the true and the false. We had lost all sense of val-

No wonder the tea kettle boils over with rage

RIGHT now, when your furnace starts its six months' vacation, is when your tea kettle suffers most. "Hot" faucets run cold, demands for hot water increase and the tea kettle steams and sweats trying to supply hot water for a thousand and one needs.

But there's no need to rely on a tea kettle or a furnace coil to provide your hot water supply when an automatic gas water heater can be purchased on small payments of $4 a month. The Sands automatic gas water heater keeps a tank full of hot water all the time, ready for instant use.

If you have been trying to get along with a furnace coil, decide right now that your home shall have a modern hot water service. Trade your furnace coil in for a liberal allowance and get an automatic gas water heater—then you'll wonder how you ever endured the old time methods of water heating.

Skating.

"It was a very mild evening. It had been a very mild day."

"Tomorrow," said John to the Little Black Clock, "I must put away my skates. Skating has been over so long but I keep them around until it's almost hot weather."

"I'll tell you what we'll do," said the Little Black Clock. "We'll go tonight."

"Can Peggy skate, too?"

"I can skate a little bit," Peggy answered. "I'd like to come."

"All right, then," said the Little Black Clock. "But how can we skate this evening?" asked John.

"How can we skate?" repeated the Little Black Clock. "On ice, of course, and with our skates—and we'll go to Egg Pond."

"That's always a good place for skating."

"But Egg Pond is all water now," said John. "Lot of kids had their sail boats there this afternoon."

"Dear me, dear me," said the Little Black Clock. "Don't you know by this time about magic and how I can turn the time backward or forward as I wish? That's how I can take you on adventures."

"Of course I know it," said John. "But somehow I didn't think you could turn the time back so we could get skating once more."

"Yes, to be sure," said the Little Black Clock.

He turned the time back to a lovely crisp winter evening, and John had a splendid time—skating, of course, and with our skates—and we'll go to Egg Pond.

Peggy did better than ever before and the Little Black Clock sat and watched them.

"I'm not a skater, myself," he said. "But I like to see good skaters. I wouldn't be surprised if you'd become a good hockey player, John."

Anne Was Cool With Eaton. And Eaton Wondered, Then Speculated, Then Grew Angry.

The OFFICE WIFE

By FAITH BALDWIN
(Copyright, 1930)

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

ANNE MURDOCK had higher ideals than marriage to Ted O'Hara and her mother's humdrum existence. She little realized when she became secretary to Lawrence Eaton, young president of the Eaton Advertising Agency that it was the turning point of her life.

Larry Eaton and his wife, Linda, had drifted apart, she finding companionship in Dick Jameson, and Larry, in business—until Anne came. Larry and Anne fell in love, but hesitate to reveal it to each other because of Linda. Anne, trying to curb her love, holds herself aloof. Noting the change Larry questions her and, unable to resist, takes her in his arms and kisses her.

CHAPTER XIII.

EATON stood where she had left him, frowning, ill at ease, angrier with himself than he had ever been with her. What a fool he had been, that a stupid thing to have done because his pride had been wounded! He'd acted like the sort of man he'd always condemned. Taken advantage of their respective positions, taken advantage of an intimate evening in a quiet room to make love to his secretary. Well, not make love exactly. But express upon unwilling lips his sudden desire and his male urge for supremacy.

To imperil himself like that, to risk losing the best secretary a man ever had!

"Confound it all!" said Eaton.

But he was disturbed to realize that all that evening the memory of the soft, warm lips beneath his own persisted. He swore his way through a tasteless meal and went to his club to find a poker game in progress. He played idiotically; he deck himself into a bad head and went home in the early hours of morning—still remembering.

Their meeting on the following morning was formal. And after that it was easier for Anne to keep to her resolutions, for Eaton, unconscious of them as he was, was ready to help her.

And then something happened that pushed Lawrence Eaton temporarily into the background of Anne's thoughts. For when she arrived home one evening, her mother met her and drew her aside with a worried, earnest look.

"I'm worried about Kathleen," said Mrs. Murdock.

"Why?" Anne regarded her wearily.

"Nothing and everything. She'd get out for over a week, so I got her out today—Jim had asked me to go and see Sara, who is miserable," explained Mrs. Murdock. "and then I went down to the flat. That Lola was there. I don't like her; she's good for nothing. She couldn't be influenced by Kathleen. She was nice enough, but while I was there some one rang up on the phone—some one named Dolly—and they had a talk. It was about Kathleen they were talking and some fellow named George. I wish you'd find out what it all about, I don't like it at all."

"Oh, it's probably nothing," said Anne easily. "What difference does it make? Kathleen's bound to meet her mother."

"Don't I know that? But what kind of men asked Mrs. Murdock. 'I heard no no longer. Well, I can't tell her to stay away from him, can I? If he's your property, why don't you manage it? I didn't like the sound of that. Perhaps it's a married man!'"

After Mrs. Murdock in a sepulchral whisper a moment. Then she said evenly: "I'm going to the theater with Betty tomorrow evening. I'll spend the night at Kathleen's. I've a key, you know. Don't worry. Mother, Kathleen can take care of her own business."

She patted the little woman on the back and went up to her own room. Could Kathleen take care of herself? Could any woman—in her? She had once thought herself much wiser and more self-contained than her younger sister. But she thought no more.

After that Anne went on to Kathleen's and was there alone in the study little apartment until the first of the stragglers, Lola, came in. Although the two had been in common, they were on good terms. Anne had seen to that.

"Well, if it isn't Anne!"

In person, that's a pretty chick, Lola.

"Like it? Want it?" asked Lola, always so rous when on the crest. "Take it if you do. Too tight for me, anyway."

"Thanks a lot, but it's not my size. Too much red in my hair. Come early, aren't you? Kathleen's out. She gave me a key."

"I'm glad," said Lola, flopping a couch and lighting a cigarette. "I haven't been in before a few weeks. You don't honor us often, Anne. Why not?"

"Busy. And tired at night. I saw 'em' up tonight. Good music. That's a pretty girl, by the way, see there in the leather frame. See it?"

"Doll! She's so it she's a day," said Lola carelessly. "But she photographs like it. She even gets movie jobs!"

"What does she do?" asked Anne. She had looked at the picture before Lola came in, idly enough and then attentively when she saw the name written across it—"To Lola with Dolly's love."

"How do you mean, what does she do? She's out of the chorus nowadays, but she walks on in good-looking, giddy mamma parts in the musical shows. She's playing now in 'Her Husband's Wife'."

Anne said, with apparent indifference: "It sounds good. I must see it. She looks attractive."

"She's a fool," commented Lola, without malice.

"Why?" Anne wanted to know.

"She's just one of those things. She's got a 25-year-old sweetie, and he keeps her broke most of the time."

Anne's face was expressionless at the information and she asked, with studied naivete: "Are they engaged?"

"Child, don't make me laugh!"

"Is he an actor?" persisted Anne.

"No visible means of support except the races," Lola answered. "By the way, he's met Kathleen and is keen about her. Doll's ready to scratch her eyes out."

Anne thought in despair: "Then Molly was right!" and she remembered her father's warning: "If any harm comes of this..."

Aloud, she said idly: "Is that so? I'd like to meet him."

"Well, you could give Kathleen a run for her money," commented Lola, getting her critically. "There's a Sunday-night party up at Doll's. Why not come along? You can stay here overnight."

And that was that. When Kathleen came home much later she found her sister asleep on the couch.

Anne went to the party at Doll's. It was incredible, different from any party she had yet attended. There was considerable drunkenness and loose conversation, and much noise and laughter.

Kathleen remarked as they started out: "Why on earth you want to come?"

"Curiosity. And just bored."

"Oh, very well. But if you fall down and go boom, don't say I didn't warn you. It's apt to be lively."

Anne made herself agreeable to the hostess. Dolly Davis was a comely beauty, who looked amazingly young. She still had her fair hair and her Southern accent, and she was characterized among her close friends as a good-hearted fool.

The 25-year-old "sweetie" was much in evidence, playing the host as a narrow-chested, handsome boy, with sleek dark hair and lines under his eyes.

His name, Anne discovered, was George.

During a rapid encounter between George and Dolly over the matter of too many dances with Kathleen, Anne was able to interfere satisfactorily.

"I like you," remarked Dolly, with maidenly affection. "I like you a lot. You're worth a thousand of that highbrow sister of yours. I like you, Anne! I want to do something for you. Have lunch with me tomorrow, next day every day. You're a good kid, and I like you," she repeated inanely.

Anne said quietly: "I'll come tomorrow."

There was only one thing to do, Anne thought, and that was to become intimate enough with Dolly to get the story first-hand. And once having obtained it, to go to Kathleen with it.

For the first time in their association, she asked Eaton if she might get away early from work. He commented, regarding her curiously. A few weeks ago she would have told him. But not now.

Anne went to Dolly's for tea several times and found her ready for confidences. She talked almost exclusively of George, and told Anne that it was hard for such a sensitive boy to get ahead in an unkind world.

"He's been unlucky with the horses," she said.

"Doesn't he work?" Anne asked.

"Well, he's a swell breeder," Dolly said proudly, "and he used to dance in a night club, but his heart isn't strong. He can't stand the gait."

But all Anne's cultivation of Miss Dolly did not result in any plain statement of fact. Dolly liked Anne in her careless, warm-hearted fashion. But Anne was

This is the first of a series of six stories on the remarkable careers of Amos 'n' Andy, the famous radio stars. It is a printed broadcast in the new well-known dialect of the performers, with James R. Crowley, a writer of national reputation, acting as the "announcer."

By JAMES R. CROWLEY.

WELL, ladies and gentlemen, here they are, the boys themselves—Amos 'n' Andy—ready to tell you in their own characteristic patter the fascinating story of how they put across a great idea in radio broadcasting and lifted themselves from obscurity to a place where their names are almost as well known as those of President Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford and Col. Lindbergh.

Almost every one of you has either heard Amos 'n' Andy over the radio or heard of them. Every night, except Sunday, in broadcast hookups that stretch from coast to coast and reach into hundreds of thousands of homes, these black-faced boys amuse the nation with their troubles and adventures as partners in the Fresh Air Taxi-cab Company. . . . Say, what's the cab (except when he rebels and puts Andy in the front seat), while Andy—well, Andy, he's 'de president' and spends his time in the taxi office "workin' on de books," "restin' his brain," and "layin' down to think."

What the boys are going to tell you (always in that strange dialect which in the last six months has become a part of the American language) will shed much light on the market value of a good idea in this country. Their sketch is the latest wrinkle in entertainment—a comic serial on the air. Yet not too comic. The ups and downs of Amos 'n' Andy are in reality the ebb and flow of most lives. Every day you and I meet such characters in real life. Amos, industrious, hard working and reliable; good natured and tender hearted, a child of simple faith, trusting and confiding, but withal endowed with rare common sense and foresight. Andy, bumptious and boastful, lazy and gullible, an easy victim to the snares laid by their intriguing brethren, Kathleen and Pat. Feeding his stomach in his loyalty to Amos when the pinch comes.

TODAY United States mail trucks have delivered 100,000 letters to the boys from curious persons over the land, demanding that they step from their microphone here and out and tell how they engineered the whole enterprise. As the scene opens, Amos has just entered the humble taxi-cab office, to find the comical, bustling, bustling up on the desk, gazing ruefully at the stack of letters. But wait, let the boys tell it to you. Here they are:

"Well, I be dog-gone, Andy, what you think happen today? A gal slip me his twenty-back 'com'—oh, oh—our own c'm parrot 'roun town widout gettin' us!"

Kathleen's sister, and Dolly knew how to be wary.

One afternoon, however, she delivered a warning.

"You tell that sister of yours to keep away from George!" she ordered viciously.

Anne's face retained its serenity. "I didn't know she knew him. That is well."

"What you don't know would fill books," said Dolly. "Now I'm not insinuating anything, you see, but just tell her to keep away—that's all."

"Are you engaged?" Anne asked so naively that she overdid it, and Dolly looked at her with sudden suspicion. But naivete was a game two could play at.

This encounter left Anne no better off than before. She knew Kathleen well enough to realize that an "unannounced engagement" would never stand in her way. If she were really infatuated with Dolly's young man.

In the milieu in which Kathleen had settled herself, property rights were lightly regarded. But she had enough faith in the younger girl's basic decency to believe that if ever Kathleen could be brought proof of Dolly's actual relation with that young man her sister would turn away. So far her efforts to establish that proof had been wasted.

She determined not to lose sight of Dolly, and because of that determination she joined a party at a night club. Dolly was the titular hostess, although a certain breezy gentleman from the great open spaces paid the bill.

Anne found the party rather amusing. In those days Anne welcomed anything that helped to numb her acute and constant realization of Lawrence Eaton. The nation of Lawrence Eaton. The work in his office was becoming a nightmare to her. She couldn't stay, and she couldn't leave. She was staying out late at night so that she might sleep dreamlessly, worn with fatigue.

There were a dozen others in the night party, and Kathleen quite pointedly had not been included in Dolly's invitation. The fact that George also did not appear was significant to several at the table.

what is she a word—peace and happiness to—whatever dat is—you will take a night off an' anseh some questions that are botherin' our bes' citizens. Are you colored or white? Are you old or young? Are you big or small? De they pay you real money for that line m-u-n-i-t-y—dere's a word, Amos."

"Lissen, Amos. Dis yere let-ter say, 'Dear Amos, I like you. If you two boys want to bring peace and happiness to our com—oh, oh—our own c'm parrot 'roun town widout gettin' us!'"

"An' mos' de time he's restin' 'em. Explain dem lettehs to me, I say."

And Dolly grew morosely drunk as the night went on. Anne, dancing with the Westerner, suddenly became aware that a man standing in the low doorway was watching her intently. She looked up into his employer's eyes.

A moment later he cut in. "I didn't know you went in for this sort of thing," he said, and held her closely, as mechanically, she followed the mass of the music about the room.

"I don't often."

"My party hasn't shown up yet," he said. "May I come to your table?"

He did so and was presented to Lola and Dolly and the rest. He stayed with them until several uproarious gentlemen arrived and claimed him, after which the two parties merged.

Anne offered no explanation of her presence. Why should she? It was hardly possible to inform Mr. Eaton that in order to keep a watchful eye upon Kathleen—who wasn't even present—she had cultivated Dolly and her playmates!

As for Eaton, when Anne decided it was time to go home, he took her the short distance to Kathleen's flat.

"Sorry not to have met your sister," he said.

"We expected her," Anne said sleepily.

She was wishing she hadn't gone on the party. She was wishing Kathleen hadn't chosen that particular night club for his evening's entertainment. She was wishing she wasn't shut up with him in the dark intimacy of the automobile.

And Eaton, driving home alone thereafter, found himself wondering why he hadn't taken her in his arms and kissed her—again. After all, he knew little about her outside his office. After all, the crowd she ran with was swift.

His senses were a little muddled, not entirely from the usual concomitants of the evening. When he'd taken her in his arms it was with the sense that she belonged there. Could he ignore any longer, he asked himself, the urgent turning of his whole being toward her?

"It doesn't mean anything serito me an' git me all mix' up, a a. Shut you mouf, Andy."

"Hurry up here, Amos, dey don't want heah nuthin' 'bout you—dey wants heah 'bout me."

"In de war, folks—dis is Amos speakin'—in de war I 'listed in de navy. When de war is over I goes home an' gits a job travellin' fo' a tobaccos company. Den I practices how to sing an' clog an' dey puts me in de Elks' show an' de Brick-layers' show."

"You means de Masons, Amos?"

"Yeh, dat right, folks, I means de Masons. An' de Mystic Knights of de Sea show."

"You means de Mystic Shrine, CREW."

"I means de Mystic Shrine. An' den I gets a job wid a Chicago comp'ny whut puts on private shows. Dey calls it 'coca-Cola' or 'sumpin', an' my job is goin' all 'roun' tellin' de people how dey oughten act when dey goes in one dem shows. Den I meets Andy, whose doin' de same thing for de comp'ny. Folks, dat's me, Amos. An' now Andy—he's goin' tell you sumpin'."

(Tomorrow Andy gets his chance. And together, the boys will tell you of their early struggles to get across an idea which is now returning them huge yearly profits.)

GIFTS FOR APRIL

CHOOSING the April birthday it is made a simple matter to find the innumerable articles used in the gift sections of the shops to assist shoppers in selecting of Easter gifts and wedding presents. One can hardly have too many and these range from the reading lamp to clasp to book, or a blue night light to depression for the perfume to the handsome floor lamp. The lady is collecting perhaps a two-candle or a double arm candle holder may be selected. A candle stand in an apogee gift for one who has a garden, and these are bestowed in great variety. THE MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

A LITTLE BLARNEY, NOW AND THEN.

The only kisses for which a man ever feels any lasting gratitude are those that a woman bestows on the Blarney Stone.

When two people marry, it proves that they admire each other—but that is no valid reason why they should consider it unnecessary to mention the fact, again.

The man who treads on your vanity, before marriage, will probably tread all over your sensibilities, your amour propre and your self-esteem, after marriage, without even suspecting it.

A man who wants to keep his superiority-complex should choose a wife as a woman chooses a wall-paper. He should pass up the heavy patterns for something modest, quiet, restful and non-committal which will make him stand out in brilliant contrast.

Never believe a man who tells you that he loves you, and then tries to "improve" you. A man in love is so dazzled by your charms that he cannot see a defect in you, even with a microscope.

In marriage, courtesy is much more comforting than candor; and flattering safe-blower with a tender "line" may make a pleasant household companion than a critical banker with a reformer's temper.

A woman's enemies never strike her when she's down. They merely step aside and look gleefully on while her friends do it.

It is difficult to say which does more to spoil a woman's Winter in Florida; the thought that her husband may be lonely and miserable while she is away—or the thought that he may not be.

Of all hard words ever uttered or penned.

The hardest are those of a "candid friend!"

GIFTS FOR APRIL BIRTHDAYS

HOUSING the April birthday gift is made a simple matter by the innumerable articles displayed in the gift sections of the shops to assist shoppers in their selections of Easter gifts and wedding presents.

One can hardly have too many gifts and these range from the reading lamp to the clock, the book, or a blue night light to the handsome floor lamp.

The lady is collecting pewter, silver, or a double star candle holder may be acceptable.

A bird feeding stand is an appropriate gift for one who has a garden, and these are being shown in great variety.

After men would appreciate a cedar chest that holds 10 ties and always keeps them neat and looking new.

For a card table cover? There are such large assortments of silk, others of colored cotton over decorated white cotton and those of fabricoid in various designs.

Feather rings are provided in gay-colored animals of wood that will delight the kiddies. The woman who is dressing up her porch will appreciate one of these wrought-iron wall baskets with the flower pot in red, green, yellow or black.

If the birthday comes before Easter a dress accessory, gloves, bag, hosiery, neckwear, etc., may give pleasure.

Have you thought of mignonette stationery, a folding comb, or one of those decorated whisk brushes for the man?

The diamonds in the April birthday and the jewelry counters show wonderful displays of near-diamonds so this will be an easy gift to select.

The flower of the month is the daisy. Among the wrapping papers is a pretty one in an allover daisy design and this would be pretty to wrap the gift in or you might use the "diamond" studded crepe paper for wrapping and tuck a few artificial daisies in the cluster bow of the ribbon you use for tying.

The florists' shops are featuring daisy plants as Easter offerings and this would be an appropriate April birthday gift.

Little white saucers with a clear blue eye. This little plant likes shade, but will grow in full sun if supplied with plenty of moisture. However, its real beauty is developed in shade.

The leopoldium is another little jewel in various colors that will deck the rock garden without damage, as it is a very small plant with a root system that cannot conflict with other plants. The French hybrid gives a variety of coloring in this little jewel.

Banana plants give the effect of a miniature jungle, with golden yellow flowers and a purple center. It grows only six inches tall and is of trailing habit. The violet, or tufted pansies, from spring-down seed, may be tucked about the rock garden and give a fine show of bloom later in the season, and the old-time favorite, the Johnny-jump-up, is another excellent plant for later bloom.

The contact types of bedding to-bella as individual plants give a gay show of faded blue when used as rock plants for late summer bloom.

One of the daintiest little beauties comes from California. The baby blue eyes, or nemophila, a dainty little annual with ferny foliage and

Little Rock Garden Annuals

(NATIONAL GARDEN BUREAU)

The rock garden has become a most important feature of ornamental gardening in America and it has one drawback. Its season of beauty is confined almost entirely to the early months of the year. It is a spring beauty. Later in the year the rock plants offer little in the way of blooming material.

The judicious use of some of the beautiful tiny annuals scattered over the rock garden will relieve it of its dullness and give a second season of beauty. There are a number of them which will furnish much interest.

One of the most popular is the tiny violet green, Jonopodium aculea, an unobtrusive little plant, taking up hardly any room and not crowding choicer plants. It may be scattered freely over the rock garden and once planted it will survive and perpetuate itself. It never becomes a pest as do some self-seeding plants.

Some of the daintiest little beauties come from California. The baby blue eyes, or nemophila, a dainty little annual with ferny foliage and Peaches in Jelly.

Open one quart can of peaches. Remove fruit and strain the syrup. Measure and add water needed to make two and one-half cups. Add sugar, if necessary, and stir in one tablespoon gelatin which has been soaked in one-half cup cold water and melted over hot water. Pour one-half inch in a mold and place to cool until firm, then add a layer of fruit with enough liquid to cover and again set aside to cool. Repeat the remainder of the jelly in a warm place to prevent stiffening. Repeat until materials are used and then set in refrigerator to chill. Turn onto a platter and surround with sweetened whipped cream put on the dish with a pastry tube. A lovely dessert and a lovely sight.

THE Old Brass Bed.

One woman changed the entire complexion of the old brass bed by covering it with two coats of flat cream paint, letting dry thoroughly between each painting. Then she covered it with a good walnut stain and finished with a coat of clear shellac. It is a big improvement and goes beautifully with the rest of her furniture.

WALL STREET STOCKS HAVE BRISK RALLY AFTER SHARP DOWNTURN

Long List of Issues Closes 1 to 10 Points Higher — Marked Increase in Trade Volume Is Noted.

I. CASE RISES NEARLY 30 POINTS

General Motors Reports Earnings of 98 Cents a Share for the First Quarter.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The stock market closed with an outburst of strength today after a day of selling at the opening had carried scores of issues down 1 to 8 points. Most of the early declines were cut down, or wiped out, and a long list of issues closed to nearly 10 points higher, with I. Case recording a spectacular advance of nearly 30 points by reaching a new high at $52.

Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, the day's sales running close to 4,000,000 shares, with the ticker more than 25 minutes late at the close.

There was nothing in the day's news to account for the sudden change in speculative sentiment. Several large professional traders, who regarded the selling a corrective reaction, bought stocks heavily in the afternoon on the theory that the technical position had suddenly improved to warrant a resumption of the advance. The General Motors Corporation published its quarterly report after the close, showing earnings of 98 cents a share, or about in line with earlier expectations, as against $1.27 a share in the first quarter of last year.

Among Late Influences.

An easing of credit conditions, reflected in lower rates for call money and bankers' acceptances, reports that operations of the U. S. Steel Corporation had increased from 79 to 81 per cent of capacity and a recovery in grain prices from the low levels established in the morning all helped to create a more cheerful speculative sentiment.

Oils, which were under pressure yesterday as a result of the sharp increase in California production last week, rallied in brisk fashion. Standard was marked up more than 2 points, Atlantic and Mexican Standard showed net gains of 2 points or more and Standard Oil of New Jersey and several others advanced point or so. Transcontinental was highly bought, touching a new high record for the year. Illinois Central and Eastern Kodak each jumped more than 9 points to new high records at 94 1/2 and 24 1/2, respectively. Electric Power & Light ran up 7 1/2 points to a new top at 102, or more than double the year's low. Diamond Match, Washington Pump and American Water Works, Canadian Steel, A. M. Byers, Unimproved Elliott Fisher, Worthington Pump and Checker Cab sold to 10 points higher, but some of the gains were cut down by late selling.

Coppers Recover Some.

Early declines of 1 to 3 points in the active copper shares, most of which touched new low levels in the year, were either sharply rebounded or converted into small declines. National Lead dropped 5 cents.

Call Money 3 1/2 Per Cent.

Call money dropped from 4 to 3 1/2 per cent, with loans available in the "outside market" as low as 3 per cent. Bankers' acceptances were reduced 1/4 of 1 per cent for maturities. Time money was all except the long maturities. Foreign exchange moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Selling cables ruled steady around 48 1/2, but French francs were more around 2.82 1/2.

Wheat closed easy, 1 1/2 bushels over, on the other hand, corn was steady, 1/4 to 1/2 higher. Cotton closed unchanged to 60c a bale lower.

Stock prices, with other features and market news, will be found on pages 12C, 14C and 15C.
